Re: Computer Programmable Training Aid

To whom it may concern,

This computer programmable training aid is the only one of kind on the market. It is designed to help procure data through research and development. It has the ability to provide new data, utilize data collected for analysis and individual performance and improvement. The programming allows you to gain data from individuals at different performance levels and provide feedback to the individual. Because functionality of the machine can be manipulated in multiple categories it allows for increased performance at the individuals own pace. The other component of it being completely programmable is that it can lead to more efficient and less time consuming sessions.
