Updates

- Tomorrow JFAC (Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee) will work on a number of budget bills for K-12. The budget bills will then need to work their way through the House and Senate before they get to the Governor's office. There's been many starts and stops on legislation with very little movement so far on K-12 legislation. If the legislature is to get done by the end of the month, as stated by the Speaker of the House, then lots of legislation will have to move very quickly over the next three weeks.
- Enrollment will be approved by the State Board to get us through the rest of this school year but it looks like back to ADA with some sort of new funding formula on the docket over the next year or two. We're working to get school district representation with a seat at the table on this topic but that might not happen.
- There still appears to be support for funding insurance so that might be one of the positives to come out of the session for K-12.
