Water is amazing and seemingly always finds a way. It has the ability to form, replenish our system, power equipment, and can wipe out entire cities. Leaders have the same properties. Some end up conforming to their environment as water would with a cup or bowl. Some have the power to wipe out entire populations and others lift the level of the land. The best leaders take little openings and create space for those they lead. They find the smallest cracks of opportunity and create a path that was not there before. They shape the land. They find a way. Hacking leadership is about finding innovative solutions to issues that have plagued the system for years, and implementing them tomorrow. The focus is on practical application. We all know the problems exist, but knowledge of problems does not make our daily life in schools easier. Utilizing the tools in Hacking Leadership will allow you and your team to find the openings and create space for those you lead. Space to learn. Space to teach. Space to thrive.

10:15-11:45 Breakout Sessions– Dr. Tony Sinanis & Dr. Joe Sanfelippo

Changing the Narrative

When is the last time something amazing happened in your school? How many people knew about it? The work done in schools all across the globe is spectacular. Kids gather, learn, leave and make the world we live in a better place. So...amazing things happen all the time. Telling the story of schools helps create a narrative that builds culture and gives everyone in your community an identity. Our families want to know what is going on within our classrooms and schools. If we want to maximize the learning experience of each child, we need to give their families that type of access. FIND YOUR AUDIENCE...BUILD YOUR BRAND...CELEBRATE KIDS!!

Going From Visible To Present & Engaged As An Educational Leader:

Participants in this session will come to understand the visible to engaged continuum and how it relates to their daily work as instructional leaders. The session will focus on 5 Leadership Realities and how they relate to being an engaged leader. There will be examples of what a visible leader looks like in their daily work, what a present leader looks like in their daily work and what an engaged leader looks like in their daily work. We will look at everything from the importance of relationships to how we can keep kids at the center of our work.

3:15-4:15 General Session II - Mitch Craft - PLC Leadership: Implementing Professional Learning Communities Through a Phased Approach

School leaders can easily access extensive, quality information on why professional learning communities (PLCs) are so effective and what the PLC framework looks like. The missing link in the available resources, however, is how to implement the PLC approach in a real live school. This workshop takes a chronological journey through one school's implementation of PLC philosophy and processes, diving into lessons learned and the various pitfalls along the way. The primary thesis of the workshop is that implementing PLCs in a school is very difficult, but successful implementation is indeed possible if leaders take a phased approach. By introducing PLC elements one at a time in a logical sequence, school leaders can successfully transform schools into high functioning PLC organizations. This workshop will include numerous tips, warnings, and resources specifically focused on professional learning communities implementation.
