

2010 MID YEAR REVIEW:
MY AREAS OF FOCUS

This year, instead of listing what I have accomplished thus far this year, I am sharing the top 10 focus points for the district so far during the 2010-2011 school year. They also represent my biggest concerns and areas of most need of improvement/accomplishment.

- 1. K-5 Writing Skills/Scores
- 2. Grade 4-11 Math Alignment
- 3. K-12 Professional Learning Community growth and development, especially in keeping the vision of why we are doing what we are doing (focus on results) and the development of instructional/facilitation coaching
- 4. Continued disproportionality in discipline and exclusion of children of color
- 5. Moving the work of Culturally Responsive Teaching practices, changing our academic results for children of color
- 6. Passing the May 17, 2011 $63 million dollar Bond
- 7. Credit deficient 9th graders (one of the academic priority indicators)
- 8. Moving Credit Based on Proficiency forward as means of changing how student LEARN academic skills (as opposed to passing classes)
- 9. Advancement Via Individual Determination (AVID) framework K-12 by 2012
- 10. Dual Credit, Early College opportunities for all Parkrose School District students, access to Post Secondary Education/Training
