Red Ribbon Week

Red Ribbon Week is a week that is dedicated to drug prevention. It is hosted by the Catalyst Club, and it creates time in the school year for students to be educated and engaged in activities that promote staying away from drugs. During the week, the students have dress up days. This year, Monday was Pajama Day, Tuesday was Twin Day, and Wednesday was a grade-level color war where sixth grade wore green, seventh grade wore black, and eighth grade wore blue. Lastly, Thursday was a Red Day. Having dress-up days is an easy way for kids to get involved. Something new Red Ribbon Week has added to the week's festivities is a scavenger hunt. Each day of the week, a hint to the location is given on the morning announcements. Once the riddle is solved, the students find a poster within the location that has a QR code that takes them to a Google Form with a trivia question on drug prevention. If students complete the Google Form every day, they receive a Culver's gift card. Another activity students always enjoy during Red Ribbon Week is the door-decorating contest. Advisories worked together to create an eye-catching poster outside their classroom that shares with the school why drugs are bad for you. They come up with different slogans for class. It is always really fun to see all the fun ideas that classes come up with to share their view on drug prevention.

News Media Club

An exciting new club has formed at Daniel Wright! The News Media Club creates a monthly video in place of the morning announcements. Usually, the morning announcements are read by a Leader in Learning from a script. But with the News Club, it's new and improved! Instead, a video is created highlighting the month's highlights and important events. It's more interactive and gives kids an opportunity to work with digital media in a fun way.

Dungeons and Dragons Club

The Dungeons and Dragons Club is another new club at Daniel Wright. Last year, a group of students asked Mrs. Groncki if they could start this club, and she said yes! They just had to find at least 10 students to join and a teacher to lead it. Now the club is very popular and it has a lot of participants.
