GLENDALE COLONY SCHOOL

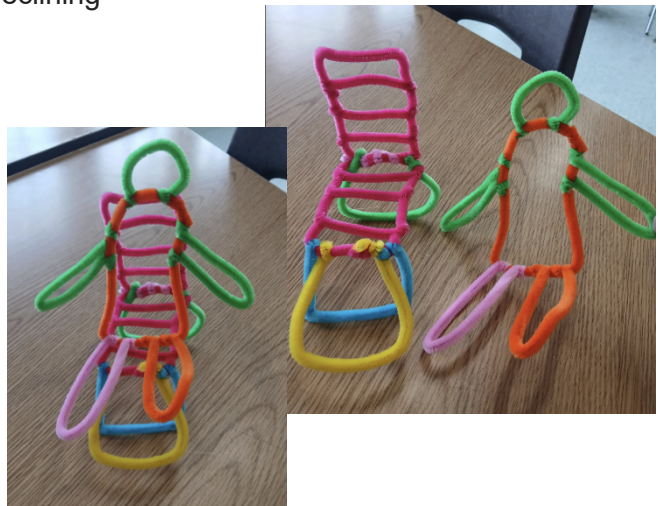

Submitted by: Sherina Whitford

Glendale Colony School finished the Aimsweb assessments. To release the high energy, the students played on the Bouncy House. Even though it had a leak, the students taped it up. They ran, jumped, and tumbled continuously for P.E.

For Art, we had a contest with pipe cleaners. The winner created a beach chair and someone reclining in it. The winner received a pop.

Glendale Colony School is immersed in studies. This teacher has been admiring the busy, hard working people that attend school; and then go to work bringing in the harvest. All is well at Glendale Colony School.

BIG SKY COLONY SCHOOL

Happy Fall from Big Sky Colony School! As fall approaches, we are happy that we have gotten into the swing of things this year. With reviewing and teaching routines, managing testing and any glitches that have come about, our students are ready to learn as much as they can throughout the year. We have 24 students this year, among them 4 new first graders and 5 8th graders. We are getting familiarized with the new math program and working our way into the new reading program as we can.

Our main art project this month was discussing shadows in paintings and creating a fall themed shadow picture with acrylic paint. The kids have been continuing to enjoy the nice weather with kickball, tag, capture the flag, some relay races and even Red Rover. On the 23rd, we had 100 4th graders visit us from Napi and the students from both schools enjoyed every minute of it. It is so fun to see the Big Sky students take the lead on the tours and both sets of students having discussions about their cultures. There were truly some connections made between the students from both schools.

Our attendance for the month of September was 95%.

Sincerely,

Jackie Gregoire
