Looking at Interim Math Assessment through the lens Attendance Fall 2026 report

This fall we reviewed data from our Interim Assessment Tool i-Ready through possible factors that are driving results. The area of student attendance is one of our primary focuses and was an initial factor reviewed. In 2013 the Oregon Department of Education transitioned to using Regular Attender rates as their primary attendance metric. It uses a threshold of 10% or more days absent in a year. In Pendleton this is equivalent to more than 17 missed days for the full year. The chart below reflects this year's 1st-8th grade Fall i-Ready math placements organized by whether the student was a regular attender or not in the 25-26 school year. Students for whom we do not have Regular Attender data were excluded.
