This fall marked a first for BHS - for the first time in memory, we administered our fall Aimsweb assessments before Labor Day. With more than two full weeks of school prior to the break, we wanted an accurate snapshot of student skills before too much time had passed. There was some hesitancy going in because of potential attendance issues, but we were pleasantly surprised - this fall produced our highest completion rate to date. 82% of our 517 rostered students completed the Reading Aimsweb (up from 80% last fall) and 75% completed Math (up from 70%). The biggest gains came in Math, where 9th grade completion jumped from 76% to 89% and 12th grade completion rose from 42% to 54% (Math is administered only to students currently enrolled in a math course).

Many people made this happen. Our ELA and Math departments did a fantastic job of setting expectations and making sure every student who was present completed all sections. Ms. Ruth Shea once again administered the Oral Reading Fluency (ORF) and made space for students who still needed to finish a section or two. And because data is now a regular part of our school-wide conversations during PlR and Extended Wednesday meetings, the awareness and support of all teachers and staff in the building made a real difference.
