

June BNAS Board Report

The year ended on a silent note, sadly. Pandemic obviously put a major blow to many methods our team uses. However, implementing a writing system has proven extremely valuable with respect to remote learning. When it comes to teaching Blackfoot through Dist. 9 we are preparing for more remote learning (it is of my educated guess that more waves of Covid will force us into more remote teaching/learning). I will state that materials and assessments we have for remote learning will also be used in a classroom setting. Time spent working at home forced me to think of ways to teach online (I would like to present a small online lesson with the board)

Under the guidance of both Billie Joe Juneau and Corina Guardipee-Hall a team for creating BNAS lesson plans for the entire district which would average four lessons a month, each covering Language, History, Culture, and Design is being developed. This is a wonderful thing that I believe will help all teachers in the district while also providing content extra for our immersion classes. I'm extremely thankful for this team and hope the curriculum we develop will match my own standards.
