Ms. H's Counseling Corner

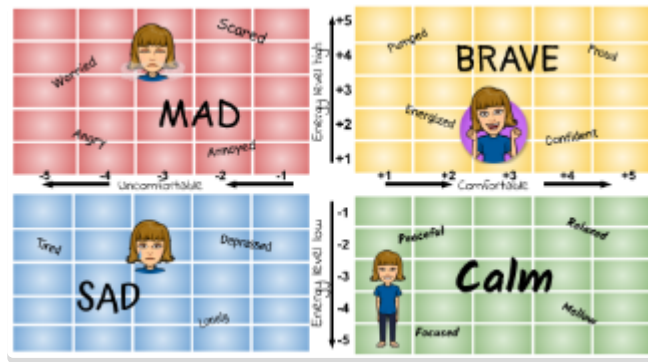

We have reached the end of another school year! It went by way too quickly. I have enjoyed spending this school year getting to know your children better and helping them to learn more about our social emotional skills. During this last month of school we will be reviewing our 3 Ways to Stay Safe along with the 8 Never Never Rules, so those are fresh in our mind as we get ready for summer fun.

Throughout this year your child has been working on the 12 Tools of TOOLBOX. The foundation of TOOLBOX is these 12 human capacities within all of us. We have used a simple yet profound metaphor of Tools inside us to help students access their own inner resilience at any time, and in any situation.

These Tools are simple, but they require practice, practice, and more practice. The more we use this common language around emotional regulation, the better prepared your child will be to handle those big feelings that happen, and solve small problems on their own.

So have fun this summer helping your child build their social emotional skills by helping them to identify where they are on the mood meter and what tool they can use to get back to the green zone. You can even use the mood meter and tools as you read stories during the summer. It's always fun to identify what zone a character is in and what tools they could use to get back to the green zone.

Here are some questions to help guide you as you are reading a story:

Recognize---How is the character feeling? How do you know he/she is feeling that way? Can you show me a _____ face? Understand ---- What happened that made the character feel _____? What happens that makes you feel _____? Label---- Where would you put this character on the mood meter? What is the name of this feeling? Express---How did the character act when he/she was feeling _____? What else can you do when you are feeling _____? What tool can you use? If you would like a set of the Toolbox Tools, just let me know and I can send a set home! My email is, cherieh@nknsd.org. Have a relaxing and safe summer!

Food Roots Garden Classes

Spring has been a great time for learning more in our garden classes! Students continued to learn about soil and seeds and turn our classroom compost bins into worm hotels. Our garden teacher Ariel will be continuing to work on preparing the school garden and engaging parents, staff, and students that are interested in helping out over the summer. Please email Ariel at ariel@foodrootsnw.org to get involved this summer! And stay tuned for our Food Roots Year Review with GGS that will be included in the classroom folders next Thursday!
