College Board Exemplary School Counselor 2019

The College Board is a mission-driven not-for-profit organization that connects students to college success and opportunity. They are the governing body that oversees programs and assessments for more than 6,000 two- and four-year colleges, universities, secondary schools and districts, higher education systems and other nonprofit organizations.

Recently they honored school counselors who demonstrate leadership and advocacy in school counseling practices, initiatives and programs focused on increasing equity in K–12 college and career readiness outcomes, especially for underrepresented populations, in the school or district.

Teri Hodges, lead counselor at Ryan High School, was honored by the College Board as an exemplary professional school counselor through the 2019 College Board Counselor Recognition Program. She will be profiled on the College Board website for her innovative, results-oriented work with students.
