FROM OUR STUDENTS

A Poem Of Poetry

By Megan Wassink

Roses are red,
My eyes are blue
Can you believe
I'm a poet too?

I'm really not lying-
It's true what I do
Learn how to rhyme
You could be one too!

It just takes time
Ingenuity too,
At heart we're all poets-
It's definitely true!

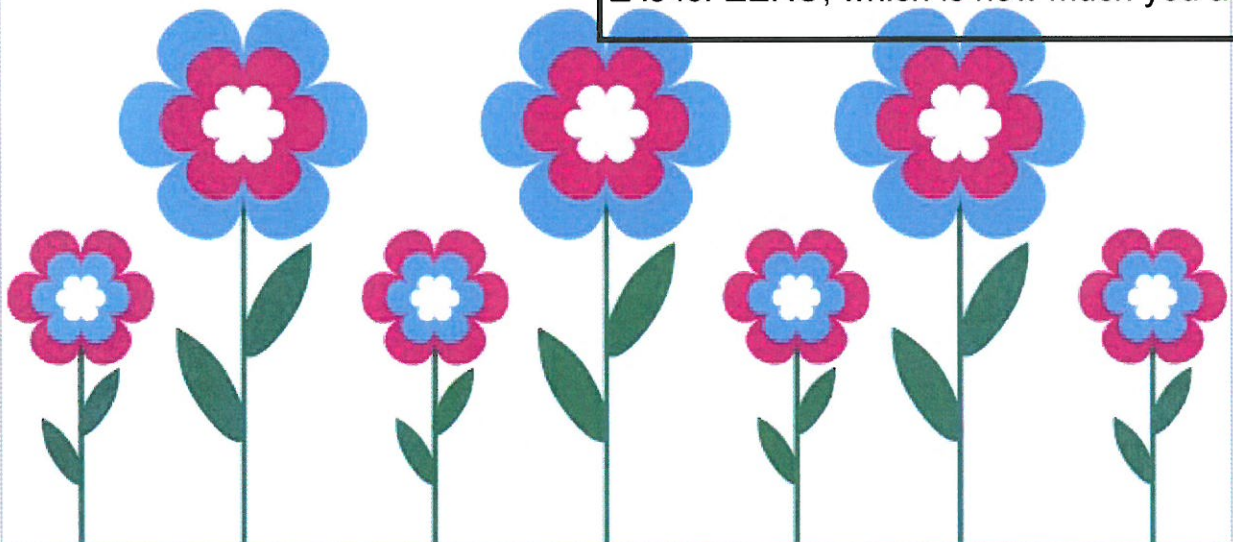

Writing a poem
Is a big hullabaloo
But in end it's worth it
If you see my point of view!

So if you are bored,
And motivation is new,
Take a page out of my book,
Write a poem, be you!

On April 10, twenty-six Lincoln Savage students traveled to the Glass Forge in Grants Pass. They were invited by the Glass Forge to help celebrate their 20th anniversary. Students blew orange and black glass floats. The floats will be hidden in participating businesses for the public to find and keep on First Friday Art Nights.

STUDENT OF THE YEAR

The Lincoln Savage Rotary Student of the Year for 2017-18 is Emma Catania. Emma is an 8th grader who has attended Lincoln Savage all three years. She was selected for having good grades, citizenship, community service, kind, dependable and a good role model. Volleyball and leadership are a few of the activities she has participated in here. Emma was honored at a Rotary luncheon on April 4th where she gave a speech to the Rotarians. Congratulations, Emma!

SPELLING BEE RESULTS

Congratulations to Troy Johnson for winning 1st place in the Division II finals. He advances to the regionals at Southern Oregon University April 28th.

This spelling competition was different than the traditional stand up and spell variety. Students were given a written test consisting of 25 very difficult words. In case of a tie, an oral spell-off was conducted; however students were still allowed to first write the word before saying it aloud.

GIRLS BUILD COMING TO LSMS

Girls Build is coming to Lincoln Savage. There are two sessions available:

Ages 12-14 June 18th-22nd

Ages 8-11 June 25th-29th

The cost is $200 and scholarships are available.

Tiger Got Talent Variety Show Audience Expectations

Arrive on time, or a little early. When audience members arrive on time it provides the best opportunity for the performance to begin on time. Arriving a few minutes early will also allow for time to get a program and to get seated. In fact, those who arrive early usually get the best pick on seating.

Sit QUIETLY and listen to the performances. The role of the audience is to provide appropriate support and encouragement to the performer, and to receive enjoyment from the performance.

No talking, loud whispering, or humming along during a performance. Additionally, noisy candy or cough drop wrappers should be avoided! This can be very distracting to the performer and can (especially in young students) cause problems in the performance. It is also quite distracting for audience members.

Remain seated during the performance (no wiggling or walking about), and only leave between pieces if absolutely necessary. Take out small children as needed.

Be supportive of all the acts. It's stressful being up there.

Go to the bathroom BEFOREHAND. If it becomes absolutely necessary to leave during the performance it should be done quietly and between acts rather than in the middle of a act.

Please use discretion in taking photos/videos. No flash photography. It is best to stand in the back and be as unobtrusive as possible. If posting to social media, please remember that at this age, not all parents want their children on social media.

Turn off your cell phone or other electronic devices. It's obvious enough that phones ringing and beeping is very distracting to the performer and the audience alike. Small children should not be on devices during the performances either.

Attend the entire performance. Leaving early is not considered proper etiquette. All of the performers have worked hard to prepare for the event and all deserve equal respect and courtesy.

Clap appropriately. In addition to providing applause in congratulations it is also important to remember to only clap at appropriate times.
