Master Scheduling

All buildings are actively engaged in the master scheduling process in preparation for the upcoming school year. A primary focus of this work at Schneider Elementary is ensuring that schedules align with the required core instructional minutes outlined in the new ELA curriculum to support improved student outcomes. This work has presented some challenges, particularly due to shared staff across multiple buildings, which requires thoughtful coordination and flexibility. Despite these complexities, all teams are making strong progress toward developing schedules that meet instructional expectations in an attempt to improve student learning outcomes.

Blue Ridge Connect

Blue Ridge Connect will take place April 15 at 5:15 p.m. at the Bellflower Community Center, providing an exciting opportunity for student engagement and community connection. The event will begin with our STEM Club leading hands-on, collaborative learning activities designed to showcase student innovation and engagement. Following this, we will share important information with families and stakeholders regarding our six new upcoming early out and staff collaboration days, as well as introduce our new partnership with the YMCA to provide programming on early dismissal and non-attendance days.

Math Curriculum Review

Our district math committee met this week to begin discussions around our current math curriculum and initiate a formal review process. This work is essential to ensure that our curriculum, instructional practices, and resources are aligned to best support student learning and achievement. The committee will continue this process in the coming months, with a focus on identifying strengths, gaps, and opportunities for improvement across grade levels.
