When seconds count, do you have what it takes to survive a life-threatening medical emergency?

When you are faced with a medical emergency, your best hope for a good outcome rests in the ability to act quickly.

When someone is having a heart attack, fast action is crucial. With each minute that passes, more heart tissue is deprived of oxygen and sustains greater damage. Blood flow must be restored as soon as possible to improve chances of survival.

In the event of a stroke, prompt treatment could mean the difference between life and death. The longer a stroke goes untreated, the greater the damage and potential disability. In the most common type of stroke, intervention must occur within 3 hours of onset of symptoms to reduce long-term disability, according to the American Heart Association.

After a serious car accident, several life-threatening injuries may exist, such as head trauma, spinal injury, internal bleeding and/or fractures. The sooner the patient arrives at an emergency trauma center following a serious car accident, the better the prognosis.

Life is full of dangerous possibilities, but you can affect the outcome of a medical emergency.

When the worst happens...time is of the essence. Get the help you need

It's called the Golden Hour - meaning the time from a traumatic injury until you reach definitive care, which can improve your outcome.

Air Evac Lifeteam works in cooperation with your local Emergency Responders. A call to 911 is the first step to take in any emergency. The 911 dispatchers are trained to get specific information about the medical emergency from the caller and determine what type of medical transportation best fits the situation. If the 911 dispatcher determines you would benefit from air medical transport, they will dispatch air and ground ambulances to your emergency. Air Evac medical specialists are on duty 24 hours a day, 365 days a year to respond to medical emergencies.

Some cases may call for emergency transport from an outlying medical facility to a larger hospital in a metropolitan area. We will work with your physician and health care provider to make sure that you reach a specialized care facility as quickly as possible.

In the event the Air Evac Lifeteam helicopter in your area is committed on another patient flight or out of service for weather or maintenance-related issues, Air Evac Lifeteam dispatchers may be able to call another Air Evac Lifeteam helicopter from an adjoining area. However, in some cases you may need to be transported by a ground ambulance service or another air ambulance. Your membership only covers flights by Air Evac Lifeteam or AirMedCare Network participating providers so you will be responsible for payment of the bill from another service provider. It is important that you get the medical care you need as quickly as possible, no matter what the mode of transportation, so you will have the best chances for survival and degree of recovery.

The best part of the worst day of your life. The largest air medical membership program

Joining our expanding community of over 800,000 members - the largest of its kind in the United States - means you have the support of:

- 25 years of experience with over 200,000 safely flown missions;
- Network of 92 bases across 14 states with over 100 helicopters;
- An organization and medical teams accredited by the Commission on Accreditation of Medical Transport Systems, a national accrediting organization;
- Over 1,000 nurses, medics and pilots professionally trained for emergency medical situations;
- The stability and resources of the largest independently owned and operated air ambulance service in the United States.

Your Air Evac Membership Saves You Money. Join over 800,000 Members

Membership with Air Evac Lifeteam offers significant benefits. Air Evac will work on your behalf with your benefits provider to secure payment for your flight. Whatever your benefits provider pays will be considered payment-in-full for your flight.

Build A Stronger Community

When you become an Air Evac Lifeteam member, you will be supporting the healthcare needs of your friends and neighbors. Our membership base helps support our operations in rural areas where having a quick response time to emergency medical situations can save lives.

Committed To Your Region

Air Evac Lifeteam is a member of the AirMedCare Network, the largest United States Air Ambulance Membership Network with over 800,000 members supported by more than 135 individual Emergency Air Ambulance Aircraft. All AirMedCare Network service providers work cooperatively to provide the highest levels of care and access for you, your family, and your community.
