Empowering Students Today to Succeed in an Unpredictable Tomorrow

Ravi Hutheesing

Friday, Nov. 11, at 8:30 a.m.

Artificial intelligence will create the most significant disruption to the workforce we have ever seen. With 40% of today's jobs expected to be automated, we must equip all students with the most critical skills of tomorrow, skills that go beyond the current "college and career-ready" focus.

Education leaders must re-evaluate the overall goal of education while committing to teaching the most important life skills for a global future, including cultural competence and how to continuously pivot.

Undoing Miseducation: The Transformative Power of Educational Equity

Brandon P. Fleming

Saturday, Nov. 12, at 8:30 a.m.

Brandon P. Fleming went from being a delinquent, drug-dealing dropout to become a nationally acclaimed author and Harvard educator. His story demonstrates the power and practice of educational equity and its ability to transform students. His experience offers a practical guide to equip educators with equitable practices and tools to help students raise themselves up as he did. Fleming uses these same tools to coach underprivileged youths into becoming global academic champions and Ivy League scholars.

Today's Significant School Board Member:
Surviving and Thriving

Andrew Marotta

Sunday, Nov. 13, at 8:15 a.m.

Serving as a school board member can be rewarding as you help shape young lives, but it is also challenging and stressful as you grapple with complex issues in the public eye. Andrew Marotta, an educator and author, will reinvigorate your passion for school leadership and offer some practical tools to amplify your presence. Be the school leader people want to work with. Through the power of inspirational storytelling, Marotta shows practical ways to support your stakeholders and the ladder technique of effective listening.
