Weather Update

01/23/2026

10:00 AM

Dear Goose Creek Community,

We want to make you aware of an incoming winter weather system expected to impact the Baytown area this weekend and into early next week. A Winter Storm Watch is in effect for Southeast Texas, including our area, with dangerously cold temperatures, strong winds, and the potential for freezing rain and ice late Saturday through Sunday. Rain is expected Saturday, followed by below-freezing temperatures through at least Monday and possibly into Tuesday.

As weather conditions develop, school districts carefully consider multiple factors when making decisions about delaying or canceling school, including:

- Forecasted and actual temperatures and wind chills
- The likelihood of ice accumulation on roads, bridges, and sidewalks
- Travel conditions for buses, staff, and families
- Campus safety, including power, water, and heating systems
- Guidance from local emergency management and transportation officials

Please know that student and staff safety is always our top priority. Goose Creek CISD will provide an update regarding school for Monday, January 26, 2026, by 5:00 PM on Sunday, once we have the most accurate and up-to-date information available.

Some activities scheduled for Saturday, January 24, 2026, will remain on their regular schedule, while others may be rescheduled or canceled. Coaches and sponsors will communicate directly with families and students regarding event-specific updates and any changes.

In the meantime, families are encouraged to complete cold-weather preparations, limit outdoor exposure during extreme cold, protect pets and plants, and use heating sources safely.

Thank you for your continued partnership and understanding. We will remain in close communication as this weather event unfolds.

Sincerely,

Goose Creek CISD Administration
