Background Information

Pat Westby and Jeff Estad with SiteLogiQ will present the data from the School Readiness Survey.

Red Wing Public Schools data shows that fewer than half of all students entering kindergarten are best prepared to learn. The district conducted a survey through Feb. 23 to gauge community understanding of school readiness and its importance.

This survey is intended to gather perspectives from families, caregivers, educators, employers, and community members. Feedback will help inform future discussions and identify whether there are opportunities for improvement or collaboration.

Strong schools and a strong community are closely connected. Overall student success ultimately determines the long-term success of our schools, the workforce, and the community as a whole.
