HIGH SCHOOL

Striving For Excellence

October 2022 SAC Report

- Highlights

- Here is an odd analogy: Schools are like automobiles; you have to properly maintain them in order to ensure smooth running. After a good opening we have moved into a maintenance phase which also includes installing some “souped up” parts. I will explain.
- For most students most of the time, behavior has been great. For the remaining students, things are improving in small steps and we will keep working at it.
- Hosting a normal school event like the recent “Whaler Invitational,” which we won by the way.

- Challenges

- I can’t really name too many challenges, knock on wood. I realize BHS has been very lucky this year when compared to other schools in the district. I do not see that BHS is facing any particularly great challenge at the moment. While we still have long term subs in two of our special education positions, we are very happy with the quality of work and caring they bring to the jobs. That said:
- Our works in progress:
 - Working with selected students to improve behavior.
 - Wrapping up NWEA testing and make ups. It has been a bit of a struggle.
