KHS student completes architecture internship

Keller High School junior Kelsey Krueger participated in a summer internship program with Huckabee & Associates architecture firm in which she designed a Family Services Center for the Gladney Center for Adoption.

Krueger was one of six local high school students to participate in the Next Generation Design Institute program, designed to give students with an interest in an architecture or engineering career a chance to see what it is like to work with a professional firm.

Krueger was awarded a $1,200 scholarship for her participation in the program, as well as an additional $350 for her outstanding achievements.
