Student handbooks are the most effective way for schools to communicate policy and practice to students and parents. First handbooks provide students and parents the official notices required by state and federal laws. Handbooks are necessary tools that schools use to comply with legal obligations to explain to students and their parents their rights. Second, handbooks incorporate our local policies and practices. By implementing sound policies and practices then providing notice of such policies and practices to students and parents, school administrators ensure that administrators, teachers, students, and parents are on the same page.

Administration recommends reviewing and adopting the 2025.2026 McCall Donnelly School District school handbooks.
