Initial Prep for Success Student Data

- In an effort to communicate with parents early, we reviewed data to determine students who might be recommended to attend the Prep for Success program.
- Initial list shared with teachers so they could communicate with parents during conferences held in January.
- Parents informed based on preliminary indication. Told final notifications would be sent after second trimester grades in March.

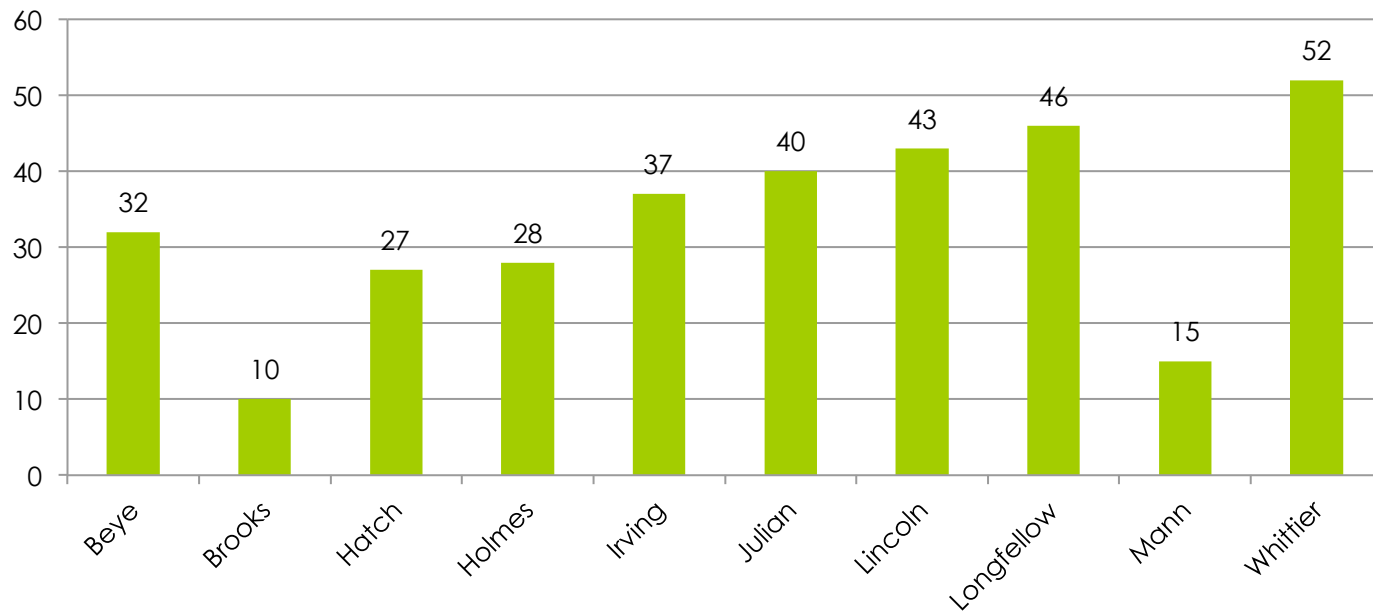

Several criteria were examined in developing a list of students who are candidates for Prep for Success Summer 2013 based on data to date:

- MAP scores: reading, math. Students flagged if half or more of most recent three scores fell below the 15th percentile.
- Trimester 1 report card grades: Students flagged if report card grades in reading or math were a 1 or 2 (elementary grades), a D or U (middle grades).
- DIBELS Instructional Recommendation: Students flagged if most recent DIBELS assessment resulted in instructional recommendation of Intensive or Well Below Benchmark.

*Except for kindergarten students, for whom only DIBELS scores are available, a student was required to have two of the above indicators to be added to the list of candidates. No distinction was made between students with/without IEPs at this stage.

The following two charts highlight the number of students and % of students by school who meet the criteria.

Number of Candidates by School

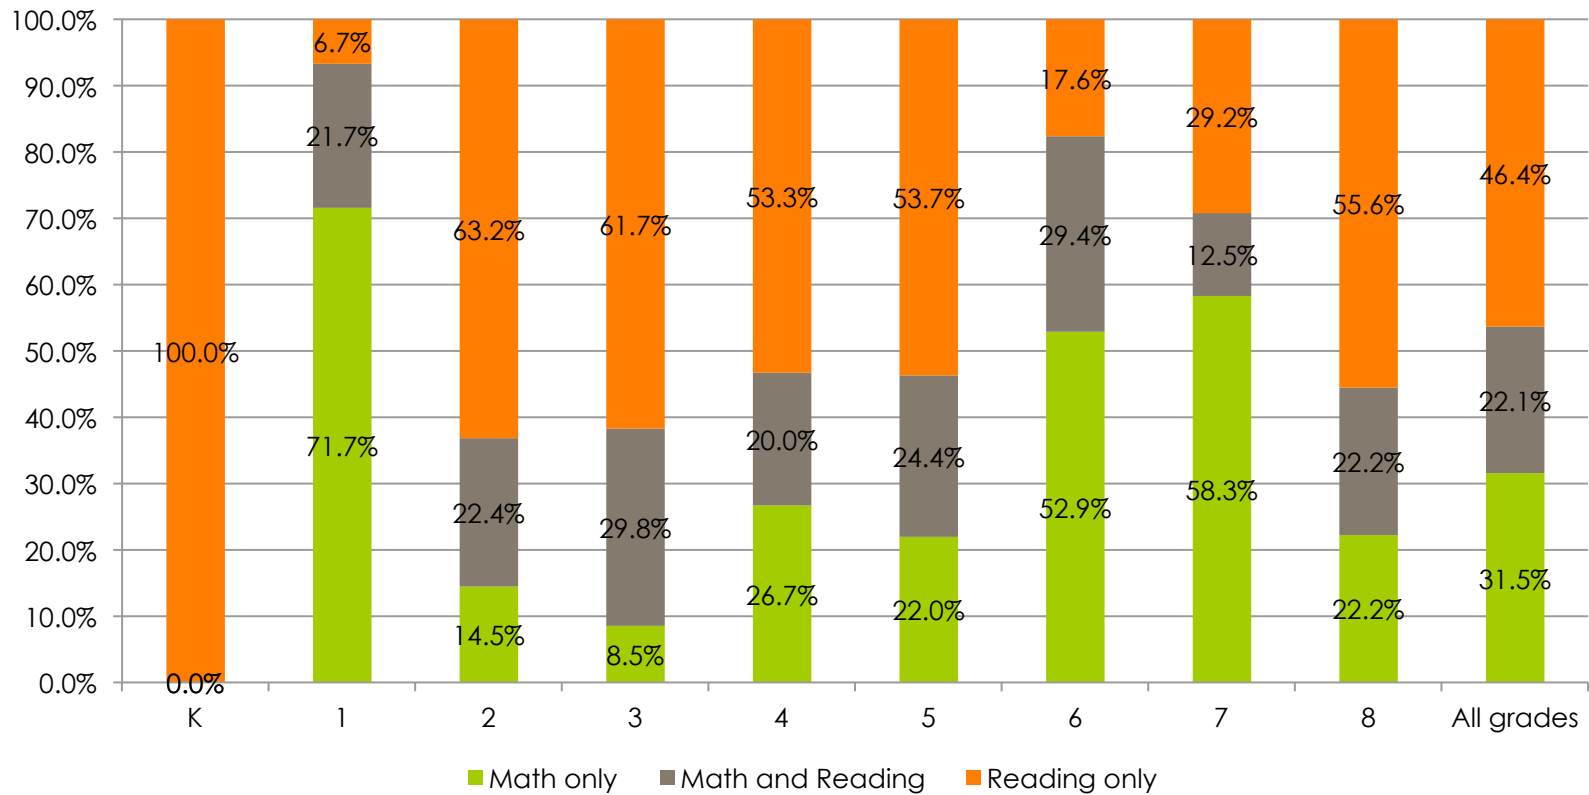

The chart below displays students by grade level who meet the criteria mentioned above, the only data point we have for Kindergarten students is DIBELS.
