WASHINGTON, D.C. – The National Association of Latino Elected and Appointed Officials (NALEO) announced today that the NALEO 42nd Annual Conference will take place July 22–24, 2025, in Atlanta, Georgia.

As the country's largest gathering of Latino public officials, the NALEO Conference is expected to gather hundreds of Latino policymakers and is recognized as the nation's "Latino Political Convention." The event has garnered an impressive reputation for delivering high-quality and content-driven programming.

Past NALEO Conference participants have included U.S. Presidents, U.S. Vice Presidents, Cabinet members, leaders of the U.S. House of Representatives and the U.S. Senate, presidential candidates, and some of the country's top business leaders.

"As the country enters a new phase in American government, it is critical that Latinos from across the political spectrum gather to share their thoughts and collectively engage in promoting solutions to the issues affecting their communities," said NALEO and NALEO Educational Fund CEO Arturo Vargas. "We are excited to head to the Peach State with the NALEO Annual Conference for the first time for these discussions and for attendees to have an opportunity to enhance their governance skills through our innovative programming."
