RWHS Proposal

Message from George Nemanich, November 13, 2020:

I am emailing to ask if we can bring in at-risk students two times a week during distance learning. These are students who have failed two or more classes in 1st quarter during the hybrid model and have demonstrated a need for a more supervised education during distance learning. We would like to invite up to 40 students a day (78 total students during the week) to come to school twice a week. Half of them on Mon and Thurs and half of them Tues and Fri, to take their online classes in the building under the supervision of our paras and Admin. They would do this in the cafeteria where we can socially distance them 12 feet apart. Some of the 78 are SPED students and may be already planning on coming to the building under the auspices of their case managers so the number may not be as high as 78. In order to facilitate this, we would need bussing on those four days (Wednesdays would still remain a full distance day for these students).
