DENTON ISD

District presents employee donation to United Way of Denton County

Denton ISD is known throughout the state for its academic prowess, athletic dominance and flourishing fine arts programs. Locally, the district is simply known for the quality work its students and teachers deliver in and out of the classroom.

That work also extends into its municipalities and neighborhoods through community outreach, including the district's annual United Way campaign. A longstanding partner in helping the district's students and its families, our employees see the value of United Way of Denton County's work and contribute to their efforts to help others.

This year's donation totaled more than $78,000 and joining the Board of Trustees in presenting Gary Henderson, United Way of Denton County president and CEO, with this donation on behalf of the district's employees is Buddy Dunworth, principal of the Lester Davis School and campaign chair.
