Program Governance Background

Head Start A to Z

Program Governance

BACKGROUND

Head Start Program Governance is one of the 10 management systems within Head Start programs. Each of the 10 systems plays a critical role in supporting quality Head Start services that lead to positive outcomes for children and families.

New directors and leaders will want to become familiar with the unique characteristics of Head Start Program Governance so they can actively ensure that their program's overall governance system is in place. Grantee organizations that build a strong governance system, define governance processes, and work to establish positive relationships among all three of the Head Start governing entities are better equipped to respond to problems in their program and deliver high-quality Head Start services to their children and families. A strong governance system fosters an environment that supports innovation and continuous program improvement.

The first step to establishing a strong Head Start governance system is to understand the requirements of the Head Start Act of 2007 and the Head Start Program Performance Standards related to the governing body and the Policy Council: their composition, their roles and responsibilities, and the appropriate ways for both entities to carry out their responsibilities. Head Start directors and leaders should take stock of their program's governance system and determine if changes or improvements need to be made so their system reflects the intent of Head Start law and regulations.

Head Start Program Governance is both unique and complex and includes three separate entities: (1) the governing body/Tribal Council, (2) the Policy Council, and (3) the management staff. New Head Start directors and leaders will learn to appreciate the notable history of Head Start and the role that families and community representatives have always played in establishing the direction of their program. This coordinated effort is accomplished through the Policy Council, whose elected members include parents of currently enrolled children and other community members.

Head Start leaders also must ensure that the governing body/Tribal Council and Policy Council each has a membership that complies with the Head Start Act, Sec.642 (c)(1)(B). They must also ensure that the governing body/Tribal Council and Policy Council obtain ongoing training and technical assistance so that the members can fully understand and fulfill their roles and responsibilities.

In addition, Head Start leaders need to ensure that they have processes in place to provide timely information to the Policy Council and governing body to allow for informed decision-making. In particular, the decision-making process should involve the executive director, governing body, Policy Council, parent committees, and Head Start managers. Grantees that have a strong program governance system ensure that they have the right structure, the right people, and the right practices. Historically, Head Start has designed the right structure and included the right people. Directors and Head Start leaders are charged with ensuring that their programs use the right practices.

PROGRAM GOVERNANCE SYSTEM COMPONENTS

Program Governance represents one of the 10 Head Start management systems directly related to successful outcomes for children, families, programs, and communities. The Head Start Program Governance system is the foundation of the organization and arguably one of its most critical entities.

The Program Governance system in essence entails

1. composing a governing body/Tribal Council according to Head Start mandate,
2. establishing a clear understanding of the roles and responsibilities of the three entities within the system (governing body, Policy Council and management staff), and
3. continuously strengthening the Program Governance system in order to achieve desired outcomes for children and families in the communities served.

Head Start leaders need to ensure that their programs meet the requirements of the Head Start Act 2007 with regards to their governing body and their Policy Council: the composition, roles and responsibilities, and the conduct of responsibilities of both of these important entities.

Head Start Management Systems: Guiding Questions

Introduction

The Head Start management systems wheel is a visual representation of the twelve program management, planning, and oversight systems that are critical to sound program infrastructure and high-quality service delivery. Leadership and governance, the bedrocks of effective management, are depicted as surrounding all twelve systems. Head Start program leadership consists of three key entities: governing body/Tribal Council, Policy Council, and management staff. The governing body/Tribal Council assumes legal and fiscal responsibility for the program, the Policy Council sets direction, and the management staff oversee day-to-day operations. Together they are a powerful force that provides leadership and strategic direction. These management systems are crucial to the effective operation of the services in the inner blue circle which in turn result in quality child and family outcomes. The following questions can be used to evaluate both existing strengths as well as areas for growth in Head Start program operations.

Key Messages

Key Messages

Key Messages

As new Head Start/Early Head Start (HS/EHS) directors and managers, you come to your new roles through various pathways and with a wide range of experiences, knowledge, and needs. Whether you've been promoted from within your organization, hired from a neighboring child care or HS/EHS program, or selected because of your experience in management, you require extensive support to help transition to and be successful in your new role as a Head Start leader.

The National Center on Program Management and Fiscal Operations (PMFO) offers a set of key messages that can anchor your learning and understanding. In addition, you will continually revisit these key messages when you attend any of the Head Start A to Z sessions.

- 1. Successful programs are learning organizations. Regardless of your level of training and experience, you and other staff continue to face new situations and challenges from which you can learn and grow. Learning organizations emphasize the need for directors and managers to support all staff in becoming life-long learners who embrace challenges and setbacks as opportunities for collective problem solving and innovation. Effective leadership development encourages cognitive diversity as the bedrock of learning organizations, and effective leaders are encouraged to promote their programs to be learning organizations.
- 2. Head Start is a complex and evolving organization, with extensive regulations, policies, values, and traditions. It is impossible for you to learn everything within the first year or even the first full grant cycle of your program. Rather than trying to front-load everything that new leaders need to know in one training event or consultation, effective leadership development emphasizes the importance of continuous learning and helps directors and managers identify and connect with people and resources that can help them to find the right answers at the right time.
- 3. Mentors and coaches provide a safe environment for new leaders to learn and grow.
Coaching is one proven strategy for supporting leadership development. New directors and managers are encouraged to find a coach or mentor who can answer questions and provide support over time. If the region or organization does not have a formal system in place to link new directors and managers with more experienced colleagues, as a new leader you will want to seek support by participating in state or regional Head Start networking activities.

4. Leadership is a journey. Just as you bring unique experiences to your work, you also bring your own leadership style. Leadership is a skill with competencies that develop over time. The leadership journey for directors and managers is ongoing. You should seek out opportunities to hone your leadership skills. Effective leadership development encourages a new director or a new manager to reflect on his or her own leadership style, to build upon personal strengths, and to explore leadership tools and resources that complement your personal style.
5. Leaders in the Head Start and early childhood community hold school readiness success as a primary goal. The most important role for new leaders is to work in partnership with program and community leaders to develop a program-wide vision for school readiness. You must also work to achieve program goals and school readiness goals that result in positive impacts for children, families, and the community. Effective leadership development encourages new leaders to stay abreast of educational developments in HS/EHS and the greater early childhood field; discuss the implications of the developments with their program's leadership team; and actively collaborate on the program's school readiness goals and related programming with parents, staff, governing bodies, local education agencies, and community partners.
6. Systems thinking provides a fresh perspective and a "big-picture lens" that taps into a higher level of analyzing, problem solving, and strategizing. As a HS/EHS leader, you are asked to be a systems thinker. You must design and implement strong management systems and continuously work to improve these systems. To do this successfully, you are obliged to understand systems thinking, view your program through a systems lens, and recognize the relationship between systems, services, and child and family outcomes. Effective leadership development efforts stress how important it is for new leaders to gain knowledge and understanding of how the Head Start management systems are integral to successful HS/EHS programming.
7. In order to be useful, data must be presented to decision-makers in such a way that they can relate to the data and act upon the information. Effective leaders create a culture that supports staff at all levels to use data in their day-to-day work. Examining data is a key step in planning, assessing, and communicating information about your program. It is critical for you to gain skills in collecting, analyzing, and using data at the program level. Similarly, teachers, home visitors, family and health services workers, and other staff need to build and use the same skills in their work with individual children and families.

8. Relationship building is at the heart of effective leadership. The workplace of today is about relationships. A relationship-driven leader empowers others and considers empathy essential to creating strong, productive teams. Relationship building permeates all aspects of HS/EHS, from parent, family and community engagement to working with the governing bodies, Tribal Councils and Policy Councils. Effective leadership development efforts encourage directors and managers to view decision-making through a relationship-focused lens (with a hue of strong positive communication) and to refrain from walking the path of unilateral decision-making.
9. Change requires positive action and buy-in from all levels of the organization. To achieve continuous improvement, you must understand the dynamics of change. Continuous improvement is successful when all stakeholders are involved in creating the vision for the organizations and are regarded as critical to the change process. You must see yourself as a change agent and support others who respond to change in different ways.
10. Head Start is a vibrant and linguistically diverse organization that requires intentional and specific approaches. Successfully serving children and families from various linguistic and cultural backgrounds requires the development of a program-wide, comprehensive plan. Effective leadership development encourages new leaders, directors and managers to be aware of the community they serve and articulate in program plans how diverse needs will be met.

Capacity Screener

Governance, Leadership, and Oversight Capacity Screener

Introduction

Organizations that accept federal funds to operate a Head Start and/or Early Head Start program must have strong governance systems in place to safeguard federal dollars and provide oversight and direction to the Head Start program.

This screener organizes the Head Start requirements to help organizations to identify where they need to make changes and build capacity to fulfill their Head Start governance responsibilities.

Suggestions for Use

1. Print a copy of this screener.
2. Have your organization's governing body or Tribal Council chair, Policy Council chair, executive director, and Head Start program director work together to review the table beginning on page 3 and to identify (with a check mark or "X") the following items:
 - Required Head Start governance practices that your organization currently has in place
 - Required Head Start governance practices that your organization will implement within the first three months of funding
 - Required Head Start governance practices that your organization needs help understanding and implementing
3. At the top of page 10, list the governance practices and regulations that your organization needs assistance in understanding and implementing.
4. Enter any questions or concerns you have in the Comments Section on page 10.
5. Share this screener and your findings with your full governing body or Tribal Council, Policy Council, and Head Start program leadership. Assign people to begin implementation of the governance practices you have identified as not currently in place.

6. You can explore the governance page of the Program Management and Fiscal Operations (PMFO) section on Early Childhood Learning and Knowledge Center (ECLKC) to access other resources that can assist you as you move your governance system and practices forward.
7. At your next meeting with Regional Office staff, discuss those governance practices and regulations where your organization may benefit from technical assistance.

SHS Self-Assessment Activities

From January 9th through 11th, 2017, Zajonc Corp assisted South San Antonio ISD Head Start in its ongoing self-assessment process by reviewing key components of operations and services provided to area students and families under Head Start Grant #06CH706901. During the January review, the FY2016 Office of Head Start – Head Start Key Indicator – Compliant (HSKI-C) Monitoring Protocol and associated Head Start Performance Standards and regulations were utilized to guide the assessment process within specific component areas except for Eligibility, Recruitment, Selection, Enrollment, and Attendance Protocol (ERSEA). For the self-assessment specifically related to ERSEA the newly released 2017 Self-Monitoring ERSEA Protocols were utilized. During this Assessment each of the sites were visited. At each site the following areas were reviewed: Student files, Play Ground Areas, Class Room Areas, Medication Storage and Administration Documentation, Parent Boards, and documentation related to parent contact, inclusion, and participation. At each of the ten sites a minimum of 10 student files were reviewed to ensure documentation was up-to-date and included in each child file. The component areas and key indicators selected for review in December 2017 as selected by SSAISD Head Start, included:

- Management Systems 6, 10, 11,
- Fiscal Integrity (FI): Indicators 12 and 13;
- Comprehensive Services and School Readiness (CSSR): Indicators 17, 19, 25, 28;
- Environmental Health and Safety Protocol (EHS): Indicators 1-4; and
- Eligibility, Recruitment, Selection, Enrollment, and Attendance Protocol (ERSEA): Indicators 1-3.

Of the 16 indicators that were at least partially assessed, 13 were noted as being in “compliance,” 1 was noted as “areas of concern,” and 2 were noted as “non-compliance.”

Additionally, information within each indicator as follows notes the level of assessment activity being conducted with “High” level of assessment indicative of a thorough examination of statements, conditions, and documentation pertaining to compliance within said indicator; “Medium” level of assessment indicative of a partial examination of statements, conditions and documentation pertaining to compliance within said indicator; and “Low” level of assessment pertaining to a limited examination of documentation pertaining compliance within said indicator (i.e., “Low” assessment level is likely more statement and observational based) Indicators identified with a “Low” level of assessment should be considered for follow-up review during the next scheduled self-assessment event.

All SHS personnel involved in the self-assessment process are to be commended for their cooperation and willingness to supply data as requested by the self-assessment team. It is recommended that the SHS Director share this information with all relevant staff and stakeholders, including Head Start technical assistance resources so that improvements plans and actions can immediately move forward. Further details are included within the tables that follow.
