KHS students named to All-State Journalism staff: The University Interscholastic League has named Anna Bleker and Tamara Fink, both students at Keller High School, to the 2004-05 All-State Journalism staff.

The state staff was created to recognize high school journalism students who have gone above and beyond to improve their writing and reporting abilities. To become a member of the All-State staff, students must accumulate points throughout the school year based on journalism competitions and state and national writing competitions. Then, students must apply to become members of the staff. Any student involved in academic journalism is eligible to apply for the honor.

Texas was one of the first states to recognize student journalists in such a manner.
