- News from Instructional Technology Coordinator, Gretchen Carpenter

I can't begin to explain how excited I am about my position for this upcoming school year! I'm looking forward to training and supporting teachers with the use of instructional technology. I'm hoping to spend a lot of time in their classrooms, modeling technology with the students and guiding the teachers as they use the technology on their own. I'm planning on collaborating with teachers to research new programs and find technology that will best support the curriculum, the standards, and the 21st century skills that our students need. Like I said to the teachers, think of me as your own personal professional development when it comes to technology. It's going to be a great year, full of possibilities!
