

To Whom it May Concern,

I am writing to formally recognize and express our sincere appreciation for your outstanding contributions as an Automotive Technology instructor at Fremont High School. For 30 plus years your unwavering dedication to the success of your students, combined with your commitment to excellence in teaching, has made a profound impact on our community and the future of automotive education. On countless occasions I have been in the community and former students will ask how Arne Erisoty is doing and express their appreciation for the impact he had on their lives.

Arne Erisoty is one of those teachers who just makes a difference—he's genuinely all about his students and wants nothing more than to see them succeed. He's got this incredible passion for teaching automotive tech, but he doesn't just stop there. He's always working to give his students the tools they need in life, not just under the hood but in everything they do. People in the community, other teachers, students—everyone who knows him holds him in such high regard because he's always so willing to give his time, knowledge, and support. And he's so selfless about it too; he's always the first to step up and help out, no matter what. He's the kind of person who makes you feel lucky to know him.

Through Arne's expertise, passion, and hands-on approach, he has not only provided students with the necessary technical skills to succeed in the automotive industry but also instilled in them the importance of professionalism, safety, and innovation. His ability to bridge the gap between theory and real-world application has set a high standard for what it means to be an effective educator. Thousands of students have learned to change a tire, drain oil, and replace brake pads, a skill they either took into a career or learned to be self-sufficient by doing at home.

The positive feedback I've consistently heard from students and colleagues alike speaks volumes about the welcoming, productive environment you've cultivated in your classroom and shop. Arne's peers, as well as everyone he works with at Fremont, have endless praise for his dedication and impact. His students leave the program not only with the technical skills and knowledge needed to excel in their careers but also with a genuine pride and confidence in their work. Many are inspired by Arne to pursue automotive careers with a deep sense of purpose, embodying the phrase, "A teacher's impact has no end." After 30 years, Arne still teaches with the enthusiasm and passion of a first-year instructor, making every day in his classroom memorable and meaningful.

We thank him for his continued dedication and for going above and beyond in every aspect of your work. It is a privilege to have him a part of our CTE and Weber School District team, and we look forward to seeing the many more successes that lie ahead for you and your students.

Please accept this letter as a small token of our appreciation for your hard work and exceptional contributions for your many years at Fremont High. You are an institution!

Sincerely,

Dr. Rod Belnap
