Future City Engineers Competition

Congratulations to Homedale Middle School’s Future City Engineering Team for placing 4th in the state at this year’s competition and winning a special award for Multidisciplinary Solutions sponsored by University of Idaho’s Department of Engineering.

This year’s competition was to grow enough of each selected vegetable and protein within their city, named Crescimoto Del Soja or Growth of the Soybean, to feed all the citizens for at least one growing season. Competition presenters were Roberto Salazar (6th grade), Juliette Larzelier (7th grade), and Daniel Uranga (7th grade). There were 18 students involved in researching and designing the city.
