

Transportation's Report

April 1, 2018

This has been a busy month. Both myself and a couple of my mechanics have been driving most days, but it is less than we have been doing in the past. We have hired a new driver that is being trained on routes. She looks promising and wants to work.

We issued six bus citations in March. They range from refusal to sit down, to being rude and disrespectful to the driver. We did not suspend anyone off the bus this month.

Work order completion is going better. We had 27 work orders turned in during March and are catching up, so we completed 36 orders. My mechanics are still working a lot of hours, but it looks like they are starting to get caught up on a few extra things. With not only driving bus, but working on buses, they are doing an amazing job keeping us up and running. I appreciate all they do to make my job easier.

On a bright note we do have four people working on their CDL's.

We are currently working on evaluating routes. Hopefully we can change a few things around so that we can shorten up the time the kids are on the bus with our longer routes.

I hope everyone enjoyed the much needed spring break. Things are looking up around here. We know that with your support we can turn our department around.
