Bidders may view the bid tabulation electronically immediately after the invitation to bid is unsealed or may attend a public bid opening in the College's purchasing office. Any bid may be withdrawn prior to the scheduled date and time for closing. Bids received after the specified time shallwill not be con- sidered. No material changes may be made to a bid once it is sub- mitted.

Definition	Technological and information resources are defined to include electronic data and records; software; networking tools; remote ac- cess devices; electronically recorded voice, video, and multimedia communications; and other electronic devices used primarily for the transmission, storage, or utilization of electronically communi- cated information.
Use of College District Technological and Information Resources	College District technological and information resources are pro- vided to allow faculty, staff, and students to pursue the central edu- cational mission of the College District and are to be used to the extent that they promote that mission either directly in teaching and research or indirectly in supporting the offices that maintain College District operations. Incidental personal use that does not otherwise violate this policy or have an adverse effect on College District re- sources shallwill be permitted. Technological and information re- sources shallwill be accessed and used in an ethical manner con- sistent with the institution's Core Values, which include a passion for learning, service and involvement, creativity and innovation, ac- ademic excellence, dignity and respect, and integrity. All users of technological and information resources are to adhere to legal and professional standards, to support the mission, and to act in the best interests of the College District.
	All users of technological and information resources are responsi- ble for the protection of College District assets to which they are assigned and for not compromising the accuracy, integrity, and confidentiality of the information to which they have access. Re- sources are not to be abused or employed in such a way as to in- terfere with, or cause harm or damage to, another person, institu- tion, or company within or outside the College District. While the College District encourages the exploration of educational and scholarly interests through the use of its technological resources, respect for the rights and privacy of others shallwill be observed. Those who are authorized to access confidential files shallwill re- spect the privacy rights of others and use data only for legitimate academic or administrative purposes.
	All users of College District technology resources shall will comply with the following policies, procedures, and security controls.
Access	Many of the technological and information resources of the College District may be accessed by all employees and students of the Col- lege District and by the public as well. However, access to some resources is restricted. The appropriate administrators shallwill de- termine and authorize the appropriate degree of access.
	Users shall will implement best practices in taking precautions to prevent the unauthorized use of their access codes. In choosing access codes, users shallwill avoid the use of common words, proper names, readily associated nicknames or initials, and any other letter or number sequences that might easily be guessed. Users shallwill be held accountable for their own actions performed under their access codes and shallwill be subject to appropriate disciplinary action if violations occur from the actions of other indi- viduals as a result of user negligence in protecting the codes. Us- ers are responsible for changing access codes on a regular basis. If an access code becomes compromised, users shallwill change it immediately upon becoming aware that said code has been com- promised.

	Users shallwill not attempt to access, search, or copy technological and information resources without the proper authorization. No one shallwill use another individual's account without permission, and active sessions shallwill not be left unattended. Providing or using false or misleading information in order to gain access to techno- logical and information resources shallwill be prohibited. Users shallwill not test or attempt to compromise internal controls, even for purposes of systems improvement. Such actions require the ad- vance, written approval of the authorized administrator or must be included among the security evaluation responsibilities of one's po- sition. Violations shallwill be reported to the chief information sys- tems officer in the office of information technology.

Such precau- tions and procedures include, but are not limited to, avoiding the use of portable storage devices (i.e., thumb drives) securing stor- age of data backups, protecting sensitive data with access codes, and only storing sensitive materials on the College District's net- work, including College District-approved or College District-con- tracted external sites such as publisher websites for a course being offered by the College District. If portable storage devices that con- tain confidential information must be used, the device must be en- crypted. A justification must also be provided to the Chief Infor- mation Security Officer.

Privacy For purposes of this policy, privacy is defined as the right of an individual or an organization to create, maintain, send, and receive electronic data, software, and communications files that are safe from examination and disclosure by unauthorized parties. The College District recognizes that individuals have a substantial interest in and reasonable expectation of privacy. Accordingly, the College District respects the privacy rights of all users of the College District's technology resources.

The College District shallwill not monitor users' private electronic data, software, and communications files as a routine matter. Users should note that some electronic files are copied to backups and stored for indefinite periods in centralized locations. In such instances, user deletion of an electronic file, such as an e-mail message, may not delete a previously archived copy of that file.

It is a violation of College District policy for any member of the College District community to access College District databases to engage in electronic "snooping," or to use College District technological resources for the purpose of satisfying idle curiosity about the affairs of others, with no substantial business purpose for obtaining access to such files.

The College District reserves the right to access and to disclose the contents of an individual's electronic data, software, and communications files; however, the College District will do so after obtaining the proper approvals only when a legitimate need exists and the urgency of the need is sufficiently strong to offset the College District's commitment to honor the individual's privacy. Such grounds include, but are not limited to:

- 1. Maintaining system integrity, for example, tracking viruses;
- 2. Protecting system security;
- 3. Investigating indications of impropriety;
- 4. Protecting the College District's property rights; and
- 5. Meeting legal obligations, for example, subpoenas and open records requests.

Copyright Issues Copyright is a form of protection the law provides to the authors of "original works of authorship" for their intellectual works that are "fixed in any tangible medium of expression," both published and unpublished (Title 17, United States Code). It is illegal to violate any of the rights provided by the law to the owner of a copyright. The College District respects the ownership of intellectual material governed by copyright laws. All users of the College District technology resources shallwill not knowingly fail to comply with the copyright laws and the provisions of the licensing agreements that apply to software; printed and electronic materials, including documentation, graphics, photographs, multimedia, including musical works, video productions, sound recordings, and dramatic works; and all other technological resources licensed or purchased by the College District or accessible over network resources provided by the College District. The user shallwill be responsible for reviewing individual author, publisher, patent holder, and manufacturer agreements for software, programs, and applications loaded by the user onto College District hardware, equipment, and web resources.

In compliance with the requirements of the Digital Millennium Copyright Act of 1998 (DMCA), any user of the College District's technology resources who violates the digital copyright laws for the first time shallwill be reminded of the laws, and the software or licensing violations shallwill be removed. A second violation shallwill result in removing the software or licensing violations, retraining of the user in copyright procedures, and taking appropriate disciplinary action. A third violation shallwill require the College District to remove the user's network and Internet access and take further disciplinary action, which may include termination from College District employment or student status. In addition, any violation of digital copyright laws by a student or by a College District employee that results in demonstrable harm to the College District's network or disruption of classroom activities shallwill be addressed as a formal disciplinary matter.

All technological resources developed by the College District employees, students, and contractors for use by the College District or as part of their normal employment activities are considered "works for hire." As such, the College District is considered the "author" and owner of these resources. Information regarding intellectual property rights may be found in the faculty and staff handbook.
