Board report

March has come so fast and our babies are getting so big. We have 3 that are turning one all in the same week. Three of our big boys will be turning 4 this summer and moving on to the big school.

I love watching them get into all their daily activities, but hearing the Blackfeet language come from those little mouths is like a song all of its own. Story telling is another gift they have. We listen to all kinds of wild stories, but stealing dogs is where we have to draw the line. See the pup down below? He started by yelping at the fence at BES. He had all the kids trying to sneak him through the fence. When they went inside, he decided to come scratch on our door. We were trying to figure out if he belonged to someone near or should we find him a home. The little boy in the picture had to ask mom, dad and grandma if he could have him. He wanted him fed and he told Crystal Augare that she had to stand outside and watch him until after school when his dad comes. Thank goodness two other people carried him off because no one told this little boy that he could in fact have this dog. See how smart our kids are! They can put a plan together.
