

Food For All

School Board Presentation
By: Nacona Littlejohn

we label the food bins with what the produce is and how much of what goes into each bag, just so it's easier when it comes to weighing the produce for a more accurate weight

Collection

We collect donations of food that didn't quite make the commercial cut from local farmers so that it doesn't go to waste

We also ask local businesses for donations for items, such as bags for produce, cardboard boxes to hold the produce after it's packaged and counted

Collection

Papé Machinery is one of our kindest partners, due to the fact that they donate a forklift to each school participating in Food For All, free of charge

Papé drops one off at each location, free of charge, and picks them up when each school is done with Food For All

Packaging

We take the donated food and package it into portions to be delivered to different locations such as Seaside

Sheridan is the only school that packages enough food to be shipped to other locations as well as making sure we have enough to hand out boxes with the food bank

Food Handout Day

This year we were able to give donation boxes to roughly 168 local families over the course of about 4 hours

We partner with the Grand Shermina food bank so we are able to hand out boxes of food to less fortunate families during the holidays

The food bank brings shopping carts, boxes, assorted canned and dry good, milk, and turkeys to be handed out with the produce collected during Food For All

This year we had a variety of foods such as, broth, frozen sausage, rice, cake mix, and so much more all to be donated to families in need during the holidays

The food bank also brings multiple volunteers to help make the handout process go by faster, and make it easier for everyone involved. Between the volunteers they bring and students, it doesn't take very long to get the families their food boxes
