Cassie's Corner...

Hey, LBMS families!

This week I've attached some cool game ideas, including a scavenger hunt that you can do around your own house or property...I wanted to give you something fun and interactive to keep you busy both indoors and out. Scroll to the second page to get started!!!

Hope you enjoy them!!!

Mrs. Cassie

LBMS Library Happenings

What's up kids?,

Well, the instructionals have been done for the 5th, 7th, and 8th grade regarding browsing, holding, and checking out books...6th grade will be done soon...I have a new shortcut for all you guys: If you go to "Managed Bookmarks" on your Chromebooks, then go down to the bottom of the list and click on Destiny, it'll take you to the LBMS Library Home Page! Easier than going through the TRSD website. Anyway, as usual contact me at jeffrey.jensen@threerivers.k12.or.us if you have any questions about the library and I'll do my best to get you an answer.

Later,
Mr. Jensen

FAMILY FUN GAMES TO ENJOY

M&M's or Skittles

Here's the concept: Everyone grabs however much they'd like. You might need to suggest not too many if there are chocolate/m&m lovers in the group! Then, for every color, they have to tell something about themselves. For example – for each red they have to name a favorite book, for each green they have to name a favorite movie, for each blue they have to name where they'd like to travel. Make up your own that fit your family the best. The possibilities are endless.

Two Truths and One Lie

Everyone comes up with two truths and one lie about themselves. This is when you can use paper if you want so everyone can write theirs down but it's not necessary. Each person shares their three with the group and then everyone votes on which one was the lie. Whoever guesses correctly wins!!! If you have the budget you could always have little prizes for those who guess correctly.
