

Possible Meeting with the Candidates for Iowa House District 8

Background:

Last year (2019), we invited Representative Terry Baxter to our October school board meeting.

The year before (2018—an election year), we invited both the democratic and republican candidates to Iowa House District 8 to our October school board meeting.

This year, 2020, is again an election year for the Iowa House, and two candidates are running for a seat. They are identified below according to the best information I could find on each of them.

House Candidate Glenn Kiss

Glenn Kiss is a resident of Forest City and a KIOW-FM radio personality.

State Representative Terry Baxter

Co-founder and Executive Director of GoServ Global — the compassionate conservative. Strong family values, married 36 years to Debby. Father and a grandfather. 26-year resident of Iowa, lived 20 years in Hancock county, current office is in Eagle Grove, strongly connected across Iowa House District 8. Life-long Republican, fiscal conservative, free market economic principles, private sector job creation, defender of freedom, the Constitution, and the Second Amendment. Supports local control of education, the Iowa heartland, senior citizens and limiting big government overreach. Strong Christian values, pro-life and pro-traditional marriage. International conference speaker and writer. Agriculture connected and friendly.

Fall is the best time to connect with legislators before they go into caucus and solidify their party platforms. After their platforms are decided, many legislators lose flexibility. This kind of one-on-one time can pay big dividends down the road.

Would the school board have any interest in inviting legislative candidates to our October meeting?
