

Dr. James Monaco
Aubrey Independent School District
415 Tisdell Lane
Aubrey, Texas 76277

Dr. Monaco,

The Administration of North Central Texas College would like to take the opportunity to express our excitement for the opportunity to serve the students of Aubrey Independent School District by providing seamless pathways for students pursuing degrees in Agriculture, Education and Health Sciences. This partnership between North Central Texas College and Aubrey ISD will serve to create pathways that will assist young adults in the development and completion of individual courses of study leading directly to certificates and or degrees, while at the same time empowering students to earn credentials that align with their specific career objectives.

As you are aware, we are working to finalize the three aforementioned career pathways so that those details will be available at the AISD January School Board Meeting along with a Memo of Understanding between AISD and NCTC. We are also available and would welcome the opportunity to attend this meeting to further answer any questions you or the Board may have.

North Central Texas College is committed to promoting student success and looks forward to this partnership with AISD and further expansion of the career pathway options for AISD students while at the same time creating a model for other learning institutions across the State of Texas.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read 'G. Brent Wallace', is written over a light blue horizontal line.

G. Brent Wallace, Ph.D.
Vice President of Instruction
Chief Academic Officer