

Special to the Tribune:

Browning, Nov. The excitement of Election Day resulted seriously for James RedFox, who, while attending a drunken party in the outskirts of Browning was stabbed in the back with a butcher knife. During the afternoon he was found in a tent alone and very much weakened from the loss of blood. When being taken by one of the officers to the jail where he was made comfortable, he reported that James Eaglehead has stabbed him in the back with a butcher knife. He said the crowd were drinking and without no reason for the attack, Eaglehead took a butcher knife and stabbed him. Toward evening, however, he was able to be taken to the polls to cast his ballot.
