Teacher Tip of the Month

by: Cassie Kinsland, MLC teacher

If you read last month's Teacher Tip, hopefully you've been inspired to begin planning for next year's curriculum. For this month's Teacher Tip, let's chat about planning next year's non-core activities.

Some of the same questions apply to help determine which activities you may want to add to your student's SLP: Did your student enjoy the non-core activities you selected last year? Did the activities make you and your student feel successful, or was it added stress?

Some other questions to consider are:

- Is there something your student is passionate about? I bet there's a class or activity related to that interest.
- Does your student need high school elective credits? If so, there are a variety of options for courses you can select, based on student interest, or as a way to dip a toe in and see if that topic is something that may spark a passion or career.

PACE's Contact Teachers and School Counselor can be great resources for helping you brainstorm and determine which non-core classes and activities might be a good fit for you and your student.

The library or other local resources could serve as activity inspiration, such as museums, botanical gardens, or running clubs. Alternatively, online forums and groups can be great ways to crowdsource activity information: try web and social media searches with keywords like, "Alaskan," "homeschoolers," "activities," and "recommendation" in various combinations. There are a lot of like-minded folks who are happy to recommend activities that have worked well and are of interest for their students.

We are looking forward to meeting with you for your re-enrollment for next year! If you haven't already, hit that re-enroll button on MyPACE and let's get you scheduled.

Happy Birthday to our April babies!!
