Board Report

November is always a busy and stressful month! It is the month of license renewal. I had a difficult time to get the application to download from the internet. After numerous attempts I was directed to a site where I could print a hard copy. It was filled out and put in the mail. I also had to take some online classes to keep me up to date with the Montana registry. I have to say it was not a pleasant experience. Most days I either had problems with the internet or I could not print or scan because of the internet. I had to take a couple test over because I would be in the middle of one and there would be a flicker and everything would be lost.

On a happier note, the kids stayed busy. They love to do activities and we got to celebrate both Thanks Given and Ingenuous month. The photos down below will give you an idea of the “hands on approach”. The waddlers put the glue on and placed the body pieces where they thought they went. With this approach you may see an eye glued to the turkey’s feathers or back. They might not have the letters in the right order of their names, but they did a bang-up job.

One picture is of our own Robert Halls daughter. She is debating if she wants to touch the bugs or eat them! They are all so bright and intelligent. They knew the insects needed to be put back in their bucket, but “I don’t need this tweezer thing. I can just empty the cup into the bucket”.
