Land Acknowledgement

Land Acknowledgement

We respectfully acknowledge that the land on which we are gathering today is the traditional homeland of a diverse array of indigenous tribes and bands. Multnomah County rests on traditional village sites of the Multnomah, Wasco, Cowlitz, Kathlamet, Clackamas, Bands of Chinook, Tualatin, Kalapuya, Molalla, and many other tribes who made their homes along the Columbia River, creating communities and summer encampments to harvest and use the plentiful natural resources of the area. Multnomah County is now home to a vibrant indigenous community representing over 400 different tribal nations.

We recognize Indigenous peoples as the traditional stewards of this land and acknowledge the enduring relationship between the land and the people since time immemorial. We make this acknowledgement to open a space of recognition, inclusion, and respect for our sovereign tribal partners and all indigenous students, families, and staff in our community.

Summary / Background:
To launch a new dental assisting CTE program by September 2026, we must design and renovate existing classroom space at Reynolds High School. The Board approved a procurement exemption for a Design/Build process for this project. Brockamp&Jaeger was selected to complete this project following an RFP process.

We now have a final guaranteed maximum price (GMP) for the full project totaling $1,741,094.

The project scope includes design work, permitting, and construction to create a functional dental assisting lab and classroom space.

Previous Board Action:
The Board must approve any expenditures over $500,000.

Financial Implications:
This project will be funded with Intensive Coaching grant funds.

RE: Reynolds High School – Dental Program Renovation – GMP Amendment #01

Mr. Caropelo,
Thank you for the opportunity to submit our GMP amendment proposal totaling $1,813,661.00 for the Reynolds High School dental Program Renovation project, located at 1698 SW Cherry Park Rd, Troutdale, OR 97060. We have proposed a deductive voluntary alternate, totaling ($72,567.00), to remove the DDC controls requirement from the new HVAC equipment and provide standalone controls for the new equipment serving Dental 600, which will be isolated from the plenum return system with our furred-out walls - the existing HVAC system will remain in Classroom 604 and Corridor 6.

Our proposal is based on the following documents:

- RHS Dental GMP #01_Exhibit A_GMP Proposal_04.01.26
- RHS Dental GMP #01_Exhibit B_Bid-Permit Set_03.13.26
- RHS Dental GMP #01_Exhibit C_Addendum 01 to Bid-Permit Set_03.24.26
- RHS Dental GMP #01_Exhibit D_Preliminary Construction Schedule #01_03.13.26
- RHS Dental GMP #01_Exhibit E_First-Tier Disclosure_03.27.26

We have included the following alternate, contingency, and allowances, not to be exceeded without additional reimbursement:

▪ Alternate 1 – Remove DDC Controls on new HVAC Equipment	($ 72,567.00)
▪ Project Contingency (5% of COW)	$ 48,609.00
▪ Floor Prep Allowance (Adhesive Grinding)	$ 4,000.00
▪ Dental Program Consumables and Software	$ 27,000.00
▪ Underground Feeder Repair Allowance (Panels A4G and A4H)	$12,200.00

Proposal Clarifications and Exclusions:

- Our proposal excludes A/E fees (beyond the preconstruction services already contracted and deferred submittal requirements for the suspended ceilings)
- Building permits fees are to be paid directly by RSD – BJI can procure the permit, if desired by RSD, and shall be reimbursed at cost + fees.
- SDC or development permits of any kind are excluded.
- Utility fees of any kind (City, County, Power, Water, Gas, LV providers, etc.) are excluded.
- Temporary utilities are to be provided by Owner at no cost to BJI (i.e. power, water, sanitary, etc.) Setup or tapping into services for our needs is included in our proposal.
- AHJ required permit revisions, non-conforming upgrades, and any corrections of existing code violations are excluded.
- Geo-tech engineering or inspections by RSD, if required.

- Erosion control engineering or qualified inspections by RSD, if required.
- Special inspection fees by RSD
- Removal, relocation, temporary storage, or reinstallation of school building contents and personal items by RSD (i.e. classrooms shall be left empty with only salvaged items remaining for BJI and subcontractors to manage as called for in Exhibit B & C).
- Excludes OT, DT, after-hours, and weekends (except for saw cutting and concrete pours)
- Schedule is based on contractor having access on April 13th to commence demolition and safe-off with AHJ issued demolition permit and assumes the building permit and subsequent plan reviews for the trade permits shall be completed with permits issued by 04/26/26 to achieve Substantial Completion by July 30th, 2026 and Final Completion by August 27th. Schedule delays due to permitting may incur additional costs to meet original schedule and shall be reviewed / addressed at the time the project permits are issued.
- Site security / patrol services are excluded – storage conex, dumpster and portable construction restrooms will be secured by GC via. chains and security fencing, if needed.
- Hazardous material testing / handling / remediation / disposal of any kind are excluded.
- Contaminated soil testing / handling (stock piling for evaluation by Others is included) / remediation / disposal of any kind are excluded.
- Exterior work of any kind is limited to roof patching around the new HVAC equipment located above Dental 600 – BJI has procured ABC Roofing as the Tremco approved roofer.
- Price escalation due to unforeseen market impacts from tariffs or wars is excluded.
- ROW or public street work of any kind, including traffic control / flagging / street closure permits are excluded.
- Correction of unforeseen conditions like dry rot & mold shall be completed on T&M basis.
- Door 600A and 604A are existing and scheduled to remain – finishes on these doors are dated and BJI would recommend considering replacement of these doors in their existing door frames that we are scheduled to paint.
- The fire extinguisher cabinet, (3) markerboards, and (1) tackboard are called out to be salvaged for reinstallation – these finishes are dated or showing sign or normal wear & tear – BJI would recommend considering replacement of these finish components to be new, like all other materials in the space.
- Roof fall protection devices, roof access ladders, roof hatches and catwalks are excluded.
- Fire suppression work is limited to head adjustments into our new ceiling system and sprinkler head updates, if required by code - fire water supply / vaults / FDC of any kind are excluded and we assume the existing service will have adequate water supply / pressure, and FA notification parameters are already in place. RSD to assist with drain down and provide fire watch as required to satisfy the AHJ during the fire sprinkler modifications (i.e. custodial staff after construction hours).
- All plumbing or mechanical work above and beyond the work identified in Exhibit B and C is excluded, including code corrections or updates to the existing system.
- All electrical equipment, distribution, lighting pathways, lighting controls, and data is limited to the work identified in Exhibit B and C – all other work outside of our workspace, or not identified in the plans is excluded, included correction or updated of existing code violations.
- Energy code reviews, incentives, paperwork, etc. is excluded.

BROCKAMP & JAEGER
GENERAL CONTRACTOR

- Division 27 low voltage work is limited to new cabling and faceplates to outlets identified in Exhibits B & C, along with salvage and reinstallation of WAP's clocks, PA speakers, and short throw projectors – all other upgrades, modifications, or system expansions are excluded.
- Division 28 work is limited to fire alarm work that includes furnishing and installing a code minimum fire alarm upgrade for our area of work only – any additional AHJ requirements or system expansions related the fire alarm are excluded. No access controls, intrusion, or video surveillance work is included.
- WAP's, dmarc or network infrastructure devices shall be provided by RSD, if desired.

Please review our GMP proposal and let us know if you have any questions or concerns, we can help clarify. Thank you for the opportunity to submit our proposal.

Survey Summary

Family Comment Themes

1. Concern About Lost Instructional Time:
- Students already have too many days out of school
- Concern about: academic progress, learning loss, and falling behind other districts

2. Strong Preference to Start After Labor Day:
- Family traditions, travel plans, summer schedules

3. Conferences Are Highly Valued:
- Strong desire for two conferences per year (fall + spring)
- Concerns about losing connection with teachers and lack of progress updates

4. Childcare & Family Impact:
- Calendar changes create childcare challenges, financial strain, and work conflicts

Staff Comment Themes

1. Planning Days:
- Planning time is critical to doing the job well
- Needed for lesson design, collaboration, and managing large class sizes and workload

2. Student Instructional Time Concerns:
- Concern about too few instructional days
- Worry about academic performance, learning loss, and reduced seat time

3. Resistance to Starting Before Labor Day
Concerns about pre-existing summer plans, late notice, and tradition/routine

4. Calendar Suggestions:
- Extend school into June instead of starting earlier
- Spread planning days throughout the year
- Add planning days after breaks
- Align with neighboring districts
- Consider 4-day weeks

Elementary	After Labor Day	A longer spring break with two extra days off	Strongly oppose reducing school days to provide additional teacher planning days	1st Choice	3rd Choice	2nd Choice	First, I am concerned about how the significant increase in furlough days this past year impacted student learning, especially considering how many students are struggling with academic achievement and meeting grade-level requirements. These additional days make it difficult to maintain a consistent learning environment for both the teachers and the students. Second, it would be preferable to end the school year in mid-June rather than start before Labor Day. There is a very short weather-window in the PNW to enjoy summer and unstructured play is an important part of brain development. Third, increase funding for the Summer SUN program! This program has been very important to our family in both maintaining previously learned skills and strengthening gaps where my student was behind or needed additional support. The program was initially funded for 6 weeks, then dropped to 5 weeks, and now is only funded for 4 weeks. This is a fantastic program with wonderful staff!!! It makes it difficult to plan for summer childcare for June and August with the abbreviated program. It would be fantastic to see this program expanded to cover late June through mid-August. Lastly, consistency for in-person learning days also means that children are being fed at least two meals a day. With the increased cost in basic living expenses, having up to 10 meals covered per week is significant. With the current political climate, families may not feel safe seeking resources at food pantries due to their immigration status, making meals provided in school that much more important.

High School	After Labor Day	A longer spring break with two extra days off	Strongly support reducing school days to provide additional teacher planning days	1st Choice	2nd Choice	3rd Choice	My family did a 4 day week elementary school through middle school and that proved to be so productive for students, family, as well as teachers. We noticed teachers used Friday as an extra planning day, school events, and other helpful stuff for the community. It would be amazing to see a high school adopt these things as well.

Elementary, Middle School	Before Labor Day	No preference	Strongly oppose reducing school days to provide additional teacher planning days	3rd Choice	1st Choice	2nd Choice	The biggest priority should be giving students as much in class time as possible. Teachers should also have their planning days, but those planning days should not cut into in class time. If getting students their class time and teachers their planning time means the school year starts before Labor day, extends the school year, or lengthens spring break (or all 3), that's OK. In class time makes the biggest difference in children's learning.

If having to pick just one spring would give us a wider picture of our students progress. The fall conferences gave us a good introduction to their teacher to get an idea of their goals but we get very little information of our students progress as teachers were having to guess on potential progress for the rest of the year.

Elementary	After Labor Day	A longer spring break with two extra days off	Strongly support reducing school days to provide additional teacher planning days	2nd Choice	3rd Choice	1st Choice	I'm for starting early year and extended time off. I'm also for school year during the summer. It's a way to keep kids from getting sick all the time and end up missing a good chunk of school. I'm also for online school via Reynolds dist. There is too much violence in this area. I have no trust that the school can keep my kids safet while at school.

An extended spring break was nice this year. My only hesitation with saying I strongly agree with extra days off, is students who rely on school as a safe place are getting less of those days. I would say the question is whether you would like extra days off for the teachers sake or for the students? If it's for teachers then do it, if it's for the students don't do it. They need their learning time, and teachers also need a break.

Elementary	After Labor Day	Regular one full week off	Strongly oppose reducing school days to provide additional teacher planning days	1st Choice	2nd Choice	3rd Choice	Most states mandate that schools offer student instruction for at least 180 days a year; Oregon is one of just 10 states that instead requires a minimum number of hours. That typically translates to school years that average about 165 days. Additionally, the amount of time the students in the Reynold school district are in school compared to neighboring districts is different and very concerning. This survey is asking for input on cutting more instructional days for students who are already not receiving the equal instructional days as neighboring school districts and other states. Clearly, the Reynold school district's priorities are not in the best interest of the students when to comes to instructional time. This is highly disappointing and is further evidence as to why our students need to attend school in another school district.

Trying to coordinate availability with childcare providers when you have 3 different districts in the space of 5 square miles or less is impossible. And if you can't do that, then Reynolds needs a full-time, paid option for child care bc not everyone has an extended network of family to take a kid at will 4 times a month, and it is completely unreasonable to ask working families to lose 20% of their income or more (or even possibly lose their jobs) to provide childcare for their kids on school days. I empathize deeply with the plight of schoolteachers, but keeping a kid out of school to correct budget shortfalls at the expense of impoverished families ain't it. I honestly don't even care if my kid has to sit on the floor all day to save costs. I just want him in school so that we can keep a roof over our heads.

Also the environment students learn is vastly different than 40 years ago. To help with routines and traditions, whatever is decided should stick for that schedule for several years. It does not help students who have always started after Labor Day to start before Labor day one year and then the next move back to after Labor Day.

For example, since they have MLK off, planning day should be the day after or the Friday before. Same as Memorial, Thanksgiving, Christmas, & New Years. Give the teachers that day to plan before sending all the kids back to school. That way, the teachers can enjoy their break and have a day to prepare before the kids go back. The kids get an extra day. Both a win-win.

High School	After Labor Day	A longer spring break with two extra days off	Somewhat oppose reducing school days to provide additional teacher planning days	1st Choice	3rd Choice	2nd Choice	I'm strongly opposed to stating school before Labor Day. Families with kids in other districts or colleges will not be on the same schedules which is very inconvenient and disruptive. Your turn out for that first week would be extremely low. Giving students and teachers additional short breaks during the year should allow a little reprieve from the fast pace, reduce a student absence and reduce teacher PTO during in person student days. Making the year longer is not going to benefit students, staffing or over all budgets. When you have to open all buildings earlier all the prep work has to be done earlier, teachers and staff will have to return earlier which will also lead to more maintenance on the building sooner and larger cost to have the doors open.

Elementary	After Labor Day	Regular one full week off	Somewhat oppose reducing school days to provide additional teacher planning days	1st Choice	2nd Choice	3rd Choice	The start time is too early for young children! I understand this change was made because the buses are shared with high schoolers, and the intent was to allow the older kids more time to sleep, but this is simply robbing Peter to pay Paul. Young children need sleep too! Furthermore, unlike high school kids, elementary kids need parental supervision when they get home and yet they are getting home from school at 2:30pm, which absolutely is not convenient for the average working class family.

Admin/Supervisor/Specialist	Middle School	After Labor Day	Regular one full week off	Strongly oppose reducing school days to provide additional teacher planning days	1st Choice	3rd Choice	2nd Choice	4th Choice	This year, we will have students in our buildings for 166 days, well below the average number of instructional days in the US. I feel like we're short-changing our kids on education...my own kids included. I recognize that our agreement with REA limits their work days to 186, and that several of the days that are part of that agreement have been for their planning days, that some of them are used for pre-service, and that some are used for conferences. I also recognize that six of those days were lost to furlough, which saved jobs. I see lagging test scores across the district and other things that are indicative of providing less for our students who, quite frankly, need and deserve more. It's not that I don't value the opportunity for staff to plan and to plan collaboratively (nor do I think that they are not deserving of those opportunities), it's that when students aren't in our buildings they aren't learning the skills that they need to be prepared for whatever is next. Instructional opportunities are important, the more days our students are here, the more days they're able to learn from our staff.

Classified	Elementary School	After Labor Day	A longer spring break with 1 or 2 extra days off	Strongly support reducing school days to provide additional teacher planning days	3rd Choice	2nd Choice	1st Choice		How many days would we start before Labor Day? The number of days would affect my answers. By additional planning days, would that mean more planning days than what is already provided for on the 2025 - 2026 staff calendar? If so, I would think for it to be better for the Monday coming back from spring break to be a teacher planning day or at least a late start day so staff can be adequately prepared before students arrive. This year, I managed because I stayed after school for an extra 10 minutes each day leading up to spring break to prepare for when we came back from the furlough day, but I should not have to stay past my contract hours in order for me to be prepared and get materials and lessons ready for my students so they can be successful after spring break. Thank you.
Classified	Elementary School	After Labor Day	Regular one full week off	Strongly support reducing school days to provide additional teacher planning days			3rd Choice		Why is starting school after Labor Day, giving teachers planning days and having a regular one week spring break not an option? That would be my first choice. Many have already made summer plans that don't have them returning in time to start school earlier. These are conversations and questions that should have been looked at long before April. Also, the fact that the district wants to end the year earlier than what was on the original draft calendar just to avoid having to pay us for our contratual Juneteenth holiday is asinine.

We already had to make the decision to take unpaid furlough days or loae staff members. The way these questions are worded makes it sound like we are choosing to take learning days away from our students. That was not a decision we made, but a choice we were given.

Families will need plenty of notice, if this is the route that is adopted by the school board, but will adapt. I would also like to add that the needs of classified staff are very different than our certified partners. Each classification has its own unique training/planning requirements. Bus drivers, nutrition staff, and EAs do not all need to attend the same training on the same day. I encourage the committee to use teacher planning days to let classified staff use these days in a way that would be most beneficial for them - not attend mandatory training sessions that help no one.

There is nothing for these workers to do and most just do nothing all day. Specifically, hall monitors and health assistants. I have seen this with my own eyes. The district is wasting money having these employees here on non-student days. If people would like to make more money, then they should find another job. Our students are suffering because employees want more money to do nothing. I am a parent of 3 students in this district and an employee. I am frustrated by the continued student days being dropped. Maybe teachers need more days in the summer before school starts for all this planning. Maybe, teachers should start before labor day and students after so they have time for planning.

Licensed	Elementary School	No Preference	A longer spring break with 1 or 2 extra days off	Strongly support reducing school days to provide additional teacher planning days	3rd Choice	1st Choice	2nd Choice		I think it is wise to minimize disruption, however it's also important to have teachers who feel prepared to enter the classroom. There is a lot of planning and preparation that goes into a classroom that centers students and their learning. It's not just curriculum planning, it's classroom management planning it's organization, it's getting paperwork done. There is so much that must happen to make a classroom function- this is why the planning days are so important. Additionally, we are putting in a lot of extra effort and a few additional days of spring break helps us plan and organize for the weeks after spring break and to actually relax and recharge so we can come back regulated and ready to serve the diverse and growing needs of our students. I also think that the November end of semester/grading day could be the Friday before Veterans Day. It wouldn't make sense to be off Monday, go to school for 1 day and be off again. Students need routines and that schedule may also be hard for families(this was brought up at the board meeting in March) but the more disjointed the schedule, the harder it is on families- especially working families that need to secure childcare.

This survey is unclear about how starting before or after Labor Day would impact when planning days are scheduled (including how many before school starts and or over the year and when school gets out). Knowing that information would be more helpful before being able to best determine preferences. This year students started after Labor Day and we had our planning days spread out. We also had 2 additional days of spring break. How would the 3 different options look within the calendar and why does it need to be only one of those options when this year we had all 3? How does the start date for teachers and students, along with those options, effect when schools would get out? Knowing start and end dates with each scenario would help as well. If able to address this please clarify with an additional survey to best address options. I also strongly suggest the district look at the cost savings associated with 4 day student contact days. This eliminates late start, separate conference dates, the need to extend spring break, eliminates need for planning days outside of the 1 day a week of planning for teachers, and would make long term savings on building, classified staff, and transportation costs.

I would like to do anything possible to ensure that those stay part of our calendar. Additionally, I feel that starting earlier and getting out earlier in June would be a huge benefit. Continuing school into the later part of June means that we are dealing with heat and summer weather. Lack of adequate air conditioning in buildings and on buses makes learning more challenging. As the weather becomes nicer students often do not get to bed on time and families make school less of a priority.

We need to try something different. Our district is plummeting and we just keep tinkering. We need to do something drastic, not keep applying bandaids to an arterial wound. We need to discuss a year round schedule where kids don't lose everything they've learned in the summer while they work on the farm (why do we still have this schedule?). This would be trying something new, not tinkering. Same amount of school said, just 3 months off and 28 days off. We need to break this horrible mold. Our "full time" caseload numbers have increased every year since 2020. I would not have been able to manage the increased workload this year without the additional planning days. The extra days at spring break were nice for avoiding burnout and helping people travel, but the planning days are more important to me. I guess I also wonder whether the before or after Labor Day start date would affect when the last day of school is.

I already have travel plans scheduled based on the traditional start of the school year: the day after labor day. Yes I think the planning days make me a better and more effective teacher. I have used every one of them in the building to prep my kindergarten lessons and materials. However, if budgets must be cut and days must be cut, I am willing to give up 2-3 of them. Keep in mind, I already have 26-27 kindergarten students in my classroom this year, and every classroom in our building has 23-30 students, so reducing staff further is not an option.

I don't like how planning days and spring break days are grouped together on this survey as if they are both vacation days or superfluous. Planning days are CRITICAL to teachers doing our jobs properly. They should be a non-negotiable that teachers are given.

That is priority one. Teachers need time to adequately plan and reasonable classroom sizes and supports. While entire planning days are a nice to have, there has to be a better way of getting it than taking it from students. As a district we are stuck in a rut, as a state we are stuck in a rut, and no real change can happen until systemic change occurs at the state level. This calendar question is symptomatic of larger institutional dysfunction caused by system failures at multiple levels. I have no strong feelings about labor day or long spring break. What I'd rather have is a fall break in October after we've been in for six weeks. Have a long weekend when the weather is nice and others are not out on break.

In my classroom, these days are even more critical because constant adaptability isn't optional—it's part of every single lesson. Students aged 5-7 have short attention spans and need learning experiences that shift frequently between activities, formats, and energy levels to stay engaged. That kind of teaching can't be improvised in the moment; it requires careful planning, intentional pacing, and a clear strategy for transitioning smoothly from one task to the next without losing momentum. Planning days give me the time to design these thoughtful sequences, prepare materials, and anticipate challenges, which ultimately helps me create a more structured, engaging, and supportive learning environment for my students.
