Your ability to align diverse academic priorities ensures that our district not only meets standards but also exceeds them through a unified, strategic approach. Each executive director has contributed a vital piece to this year's academic puzzle, proving that while their focuses differ, the goal remains singular: improving student outcomes. This initiative ensures that our commitment to equity and inclusion is backed by high-quality, actionable training. Regina Jackson: Her leadership in navigating the adoption of the new curriculum for elementary reading and math has been seamless. By providing a solid instructional foundation, she has set the stage for long-term gains in literacy and numeracy. Kristy Morse & Sean Walker: Their dedicated support of campus principals serves as the bridge between district vision and classroom reality. Their coaching and mentorship empower our leaders to foster environments where both teachers and students thrive. Tyisha Nelson: The development of new systems and processes for data analysis has brought a necessary precision to our work. Her focus on ongoing school improvement planning ensures that our decisions are always evidence-based and proactive.
