EXECUTIVE SUMMARY FOR THE SHOREWOOD SCHOOL BOARD

Topic: Recommendation for the 2023-24 Instructional Calendar

Date: February 14, 2023

Prepared by: Dr. JoAnn Sternke, Interim Superintendent
Mike Joynt, Interim Director of Teaching & Learning

Recommended action:

- ☐ Information only
- ☐ Presentation/discussion
- ☐ Discussion/action by committee
- ☒ Discussion/action by Board of Education
- ☐ Presentation/action next meeting

Purpose:

The purpose of this report is to provide an overview of the process and final recommendation of the District Calendar Committee, which was convened to propose an instructional calendar for the 2023-24 school year.

Background:

The District Calendar Committee (comprised of teachers, parents, representatives from the SEA, the high school Principal, the Executive Assistant to the Director of Teaching & Learning, and the Director of Teaching & Learning) met on January 12 and January 26 to evaluate two instructional calendar options for the 2023-24 school year.

The annual calendar must meet instructional hour requirements for students and contract obligations, and address these considerations:

1. Scheduling student attendance days to support academic growth;
2. Equity and representation considerations pertaining to cultural and religious diversity represented in the District;
3. Alignment of Spring Break dates with other local school districts, and alignment of other breaks with the end of marking periods, when possible;
4. Professional development needs;
5. Summer school schedule; and
6. Two (2) inclement weather dates with a flexible "snow make-up" date on Friday, May 24 (this date would become a student attendance day if a 3rd inclement weather day is needed).

Recommendation:

The Committee reviewed the required days and minutes as communicated by DPI and District Employee Handbooks, and discussed both options. The consensus, and the recommendation set forth to the Board, is for the District to adopt the 2023-2024 Instructional Calendar attached (Draft 2023-24 Instructional Calendar).

The alternative calendar required a start date of Friday, September 1, which was viewed as undesirable for both employees and student families.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY FOR THE SHOREWOOD SCHOOL BOARD

Topic: Operating Referendum Update

Date: February 14, 2023

Prepared by: Paru Shah

Recommended action:

- ☐ Information only
- ☒ Presentation/discussion
- ☐ Discussion/action by board of education
- ☐ Presentation/action next meeting

Purpose:

To provide Board and community members with updates and information regarding the April 4, 2023 operating referendum ballot item.

Background:

We are pursuing an operating referendum because state funding is not adequate to cover the rising costs of education and we are committed to preserving the robust student experience Shorewood School District delivers. Our discussion this evening is meant to respond to questions, for informational purposes only; we want to be clear that this discussion is not intended to persuade voters on the upcoming operating referendum.

We have received some questions regarding the commitment to funding steps and lanes should the operating referendum pass on April 4, 2023.

The Board has concluded that, with passage of the operating referendum, the proposed 2023-2024 budget allocates funds sufficient to cover a total base wage increase that would include funding the existing steps and lanes salary structure for teachers. The Board would support application of the same percentage increase to all employee group salary schedules within the 2023-2024 budget. The Board supports District Administration considering similar, future total base wage increases for all employees throughout the five years of referendum funding, pursuant to an annual fiscal review.

We are taking this action because we value our teachers and staff and have a commitment to attracting and retaining a high quality staff. Moreover, our teaching staff has made it clear they value the predictability and transparency of the steps and lanes salary structure.

Board members and District leadership have completed a number of community outreach activities to provide residents with information about the upcoming operating referendum, including an engagement session on February 3, along with staffing information tables at District and community events. The next Referendum Information Session will be held on Wednesday, February 15 at 6:30 pm and we encourage staff, District families and Village residents to attend this virtual presentation. The Zoom link for the session is also posted in the Board meeting schedule section on the District website. Additional information sessions are scheduled for March 5 and March 21, and referendum information will be available at a number of upcoming events in the community. An informational mailer will also be distributed to all Shorewood residences later this month.

Answers to many of the questions we have received from community members are included in the Referendum FAQ on the District website. The FAQ also includes a portal to submit questions to the District. These are reviewed and addressed in the FAQ, as needed.

Additionally, some questions from the community have alerted us to the need to provide more information about the significant erosion of state funding for public schools that has impacted the District's finances, and the growing number of districts that are turning to operating referendums to address budget gaps caused by lack of state aid and increasing expenses. Over the next few weeks, we will be adding news coverage and policy research that addresses these topics to the referendum information on the website, and I want to share a few of these items as part of this update:

- Milwaukee Journal Sentinel, October 14, 2022: Wisconsin's special ed funding only covers a third of what schools spend
- Wisconsin Public Radio, July 6, 2022: Public school spending in Wisconsin saw third-slowest growth in nation
- Wisconsin State Journal, November 8, 2022: Wisconsin schools have the highest number of referendums in 21 years

February 14, 2023 Report
Emily Berry

The Wisconsin Association of School Boards (WASB) and its counterpart associations of School Business Officials and School Administrators hosted its annual Education Convention at the Wisconsin Center in downtown Milwaukee Jan. 18-20.

I was able to attend some of the educational sessions as well as representing our board at the Delegate Assembly, where WASB members vote on policy statements that guide WASB lobbyists as they work to influence state and federal legislation and rulemaking.

This year our district was also honored to be represented by our Wisconsin Teacher of the Year, Sarah Kopplin, who was recognized along with other teacher, administrator and business official honorees.

Delegate Assembly highlights:

WASB member districts each have one vote in the assembly. Most proposed policy changes and new policies first pass through a committee that screens them and may combine similar resolutions or reject ones that are too much at odds with current WASB policy and resolutions. In almost every case this year (exception noted below), I cast our board's vote with the majority. Below are some of the items that elicited the most debate.

Passed:

- Support for "voter education" to be added to a long list of existing items that WASB policy states are part of a "well-rounded" education.
- Additional language around concealed weapons in school buildings and on school grounds, clarifying that WASB does not oppose districts' choice to allow school-sponsored skeet shooting clubs or other activities on campus, even if that means there are weapons or weapon replicas on campus.
- A resolution calling for legislators to use existing rulemaking and legislative channels rather than "back door" authority such as budget bills to impose mandates on school districts.

Rejected:

- A resolution in support of state funding for universal free lunch - specifically for the state to fund lunches for all students who do not meet the criteria for federally-funded free or reduced lunch. I cast our vote in favor of this resolution because I believe it is in line with our support for equity and student wellness, along with support for improved academic performance that is shown to stem from ensuring students are not hungry while they're at school. Opponents were concerned that the state's $6.6B budget surplus could be quickly depleted by paying for school lunches for students who don't formally demonstrate a need.

Session highlights:

Keynote

The convention's opening session featured a keynote by leadership consultant David Horsager, who focuses his work on why and how leaders and organizations build trust. He was an incredibly dynamic and compelling speaker. His work, in a nutshell, describes eight pillars of trust: Clarity, Compassion, Character, Competency, Commitment, Connection, Contribution and Consistency.

Communicating around an operating referendum:

I attended a session hosted by Trevor-Wilmot school district and communications consultant Doreen Dembski. I was pleased to hear advice that was well in line with our current practices and what we have planned ahead of our April referendum. For example, Dembski urged districts to create and implement robust communication plans well before asking the public to approve a referendum. Trevor-Wilmot is a small K-8 district that hadn't done much outreach to its community prior to its referendum - it lost the first one by a handful of votes, but won the second one after implementing a comprehensive communication plan.

This session and others around operation referendums were well-attended, not surprisingly since we are far from alone in asking for a referendum this spring, and many others see the need on the horizon.

Restorative Practices:

Amy Starzecki, the Superintendent in Superior School District, outlined how adopting restorative practices had led to lower suspension and expulsion rates there over just a few years. This was the subject of her Ph.D dissertation. She was careful to dispel myths about restorative practices - namely, that they are "all about circles" and that they are reactive to person-specific harm. Instead, she said, most restorative practices don't involve a circle, and most are proactive relationship-building rather than about repairing harm. She was also careful to note that there is some student behavior that does call for suspension, so suspensions don't drop to zero after adopting restorative practices. You can read a summary of her research here on Edutopia.

She noted that her experience and the research she conducted on rolling out restorative practices was applicable to any change management challenge.

These were just a few of the dozens of presentations at the meeting - many are available online, including downloads of slides.

District and School Updates

I remember last year's SHS Black History Presentation by Youth Rising Up very well. It was a performance that affirmed for me one of the many things that make Shorewood so special. I am once again inspired by the thought-provoking work this student group and their advisors are doing to prepare for this year's program. The event, "A Collective Consciousness," will showcase the Black Experience through song, poetry, and dance, and it will be presented to middle and high school students during advisory period on February 22 in the SHS Auditorium. A public performance will begin at 7 pm that evening. Learning through the important themes of Black History Month, and this production by Youth Rising Up, are important reflections of our unique commitment to providing learning experiences that are both relevant and that build the skills and values students need to navigate their futures. I trust the presentation of "A Collective Consciousness" will have a real and lasting impact for both creators and attendees, and I hope Board and community members will join us in celebrating the work of our students.

Administrative and school leaders joined me in listening to the WI Educational Equity Leadership Institute keynote address by Cornelius Minor on January 26, and this was a great opportunity to learn together and reaffirm our commitment to our equity work. Or, as Mr. Minor put it, “creating the conditions that allow all children to succeed.”

Responding to student needs is also at the core of plans to amend the SIS schedule for next year (Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday - the early-release Wednesday schedule will remain the same). Interim SIS Principal Sam Nadolsky worked to facilitate discussions about this, and there have been many opportunities over the past four months for SIS staff to provide feedback through surveys and meetings. An all-staff meeting was held to review the survey feedback received, and on January 11, all SIS staff gathered to review and discuss the final schedule proposal and voted on class length, which will be increased from 40 minutes to 48 minutes in core subjects. In addition to providing SIS students with opportunities to take electives and use Flex Time differently, this change will:

- maximize shared SIS/SHS staff time and efficiency for these traveling faculty members;
- increase consistency for staff planning as well as provide a common planning period to allow for more interdisciplinary planning and support of our building teams; and
- Introduce important consistency for students to support their developing executive functioning skills.

SIS is ready to move this schedule forward and will be communicating with incoming and current SIS families in the weeks ahead. This has been a well thought out process, and I’m proud of the thought that went into it and the communication of the process and the schedule it yielded.

Interviews for the Director of Teaching & Learning position got underway last week, and we hope to move on to a final round before the end of February. In addition to school principals and administrative leaders, a number of instructional staff will participate in this interview process. The posting for the position of Principal of SIS is currently being advertised on WECAN, and the screening and interview process for this position will begin in early March.

Finally, the Open Enrollment window opened on February 6, and we received 200 applications during the first week; the application period closes in April.

Operating Referendum Updates

Communicating about the operating referendum on the April 4 ballot has been a major focus over the past few weeks, and our schools, the Recreation Department and other District offices are sharing Operating Referendum Information with student families and community members. Details about upcoming Referendum Information sessions (February 15, March 5 and March 21) can be viewed here.

In addition to these in-person and virtual events, information about the gap that inadequate state funding has created and the operating referendum ballot item will be available at a number of District events in the coming weeks. I had the opportunity to speak with theater-goers before the premiere of Little Shop of Horrors last week, and I appreciated the help of Board members who also staffed information tables prior to these terrific student performances.

We appreciate all of the questions and feedback we are receiving, and work to respond through our growing Referendum FAQ as soon as possible. We know that community members want to understand specific reductions being considered, too. While financial assumptions for 2023/2024 (flat enrollment, 3% increases for all employee groups, and significant increases in operating expenses) and the resulting revenue and expense projections have been prepared (presented in this December 13 School Board presentation), other budget work is still underway:

- School and department leaders are working on their individual budget proposals now, using the budget balancing strategies we instituted last year to reduce the 2022-23 operating budget by over $1 million;
- The District is in the process of soliciting proposals for health coverage for employees and other significant benefits/services to assess any potential for savings; and
- Course registration at SIS and SHS is also underway, and these enrollment numbers are a key driver in staffing decisions in the higher grades.

These, and other variables, will inform decisions about reductions that will be needed. To be clear, regardless of referendum passage, we will need to reduce the 2023-2024 budget by approximately $1 million. Without passage of the referendum, the 2023-2024 operating budget will need to be reduced by over $2.5 million; the revenue gap will grow to approximately $25 million over the next five years. Simply put, there is no way to avoid sizable reductions to existing instructional and extra-curricular programs and staffing with revenue shortfalls of this magnitude. Decision-making will remain focused on prioritizing student programs and reflecting our community's values. In general, these areas have been identified for reductions in order to balance our budget:

Reductions, regardless of referendum results:

- Aligning staffing to current student populations
 - Seeking efficiencies in all staffing categories
 - Utilizing class size target guidelines to guide staffing reductions and course offerings
- Restructuring health benefit models to minimize annual district cost increases
- Reducing outside consultant contracts

All of the items above, along with these additions, will be considered without referendum funding:

- Amending class size guidelines and pursuing course, program and student-service modifications
- Freezing and/or significantly reducing salary increases
- Immediate reducing staff benefits

Finally, I want to revisit staff compensation. Board President Paru Shah has included an executive summary for the Board's discussion about the operating referendum that references steps and lanes. I urge people to review this summary and listen to the Board's discussion of this topic at the meeting on Tuesday, February 14.
